

GERMANS OBJECT TO THE PRESENT EXCESSIVE EXPENSE OF THEIR NAVY TAX INCREASES TOO DEEPLY TOUGH PEOPLE

Expenditures Are Increased More Than Eight Fold

Big Changes Being Made at the Krupp Factories--Gossip of the Army

(By MALCOLM CLARKE.)

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—A movement has been started here to arouse the public to the excessive cost of the navy. During the present Emperor's reign the annual expenditure on the fleet has increased from $12,600,000 to $100,000,000. Not a few Germans are discovering that this is too much and their discovery has no doubt been assisted by the pinch of taxes on articles of everyday consumption. The campaign for the revision of the navy law, or in other terms the building of fewer ships than are provided for in the naval program, is, however, quite distinct from any advocacy of the limitation of armaments. The promoters of the movement have studied the accounts of the navy and have found that for the purpose of protecting her commerce and colonies Germany does not require so many huge battleships as it was proposed to build.

CHANGES AT KRUPP'S.

A number of important changes are reported to have been made on October 1 in the management of the great Krupp firm of Essen. The chairman of the Board of Directors, Herr Reiger, is succeeded by Herr Hugenberg of Frankfurt, and three other directors, together with the head of the armour plates office and other officers of the company have resigned. The Essen firm, which is the largest of the Lokalanzeiger says that one of the new directors, who has for some time been "head of the political department of the firm of Krupp," is to take over the management of an "Eisenzeitung" daily paper, which has been acquired by the firm. The same correspondent is responsible for the statement that the changes are believed at Essen to be due to differences on political questions.

THE PASSION PLAY.

Although the performances of the Passion Play at Oberammergau do not begin before Ascension Day, next May, the demand for tickets already reach 30,000, which is the greatest yet recorded. It is stated that Anton Lang, who impersonates Christ, has received 1000 applications for rooms in his house from Americans alone. The first passion play took place in 1720, and resulted in a deficit of $30. A like deficit continued until 1800, when things took a turn. The profits then increased every decade, being in 1890 nearly $200,000. In that year the present theater, which seats 1500 persons, was built at a cost of $300,000.

CRUELTY TO SOLDIERS.

It would seem that young German soldiers are still liable to ill-treatment, despite the agitation many protests against it which have appeared in the press. A court martial at Leipzig has just condemned a sergeant named Jahnke, of the first company of the Seventy-seventh Infantry Regiment, to six months imprisonment for perpetrating fifty-six acts of cruelty on private soldiers under his command. The evidence adduced during the trial was that in 1907 Jahnke was in the habit of beating and kicking the recruits, and even of belaboring them with the butt end of his rifle. The prosecutor appealed to the court to impose an exemplary sentence of five months hard labor on the military judge took a more lenient view of the offense, admitting as a mitigating circumstance the supposition that Jahnke had acted in the interests of discipline.

COMMENTS ON BRITISH ARMY.

The German military critics refuse to believe that the British army has been reformed and that the recent manoeuvres showed that the British soldier now understands his business. The "National Zeitung," in an article on the British army manoeuvres, says: "With all modernity it must be said that these skeptical times we do not believe in miracles, nor do we believe in such a miracle as a sudden change of character in the British army. The praise bestowed on the British troops is obvious. It is intended for foreigners to read, but the British must not be surprised if we do not regard it seriously."

MANY ROBBERIES IN GERMANY.

During the last eighteen months, a series of murders, or attempted murders, for purposes of robbery have been reported from various German provinces. The latest concerns the murder of Pastor Vermeiren, a Neunkirchen clergyman, and his wife who were holiday-making at Saesnitz, a lovely spot on the beautiful island of Ruegen in the Baltic. The bodies were found in a wood near the coast, both riddled with bullets from a revolver.

REVOLUTION IN STEEL.

The successful solution of the problem of making steel directly from iron ores by electricity has aroused great excitement among the iron and steel manufacturers of this country. It has been accomplished at Domont, in the Duchy of Normandy, where an electrical furnace has been producing steel fully equal to the best made from Swedish ores. The success of this invention is expected to have a very far reaching result. The electrical furnace used at Domont is the invention of two German engineers named Ruessing and Bodenhausen, and it is produced by one of the great electrical companies of Berlin, which have organized a special company for exploiting it.

GERMANS OBJECT TO STATUS.

The German people are evidently no love for the poet nor any desire for his statue. It will be remembered that the late Empress Elizabeth of Austria, who was a passionate admirer of Heine, caused a statue of him to be erected in the villa Cornet. When the Kaiser became the owner of the Achilleion he kicked at one who had so little reverence for absolute monarchs, and Heine's statue was ignominiously removed.

Spanish Commander Has Good Friend in Moor Chief

General Marina, the Spanish leader at Melilla, is here seen in consultation with the friendly Moorish Chief, Kaid Chechou, who has rendered valuable assistance to the Spanish cause. His contingent of 300 Moorish infantry and troop of horse formed the vanguard of the Spanish column during a recent attack on the Rif tribesmen, and who have greatly contributed to the success of the operation.

Work of American Patriots in Ireland Was Better Than The Most Sanguine Expected

(By THOMAS EMMETT.)

DUBLIN, Oct. 23.—Captain O'Meara and John O'Callaghan, the American envoys, have finished their work and by this time are back in America.

They have been the recipients of honors which usually are reserved for men who have accomplished great things, and their reception, not only in Ireland, but in England and Scotland as well, has been a revelation of the strength of the national feeling among the Irish people. Captain O'Meara, quite overshadowed by O'Callaghan, the man who had stood in the shadow of the gallows, had endured prison and for a generation had been an exile from his native land, all for Ireland, accounts for this.

The names of the towns which have conferred citizenship upon the noted ex-Fenian would read like a gazetteer of Ireland. Great crowds have greeted him with wild enthusiasm everywhere, and one of the most enthusiastic gatherings seen in Ireland since Parnell was in his prime bade him God-speed on his journey home.

Scenes of great excitement occurred among the audience which filled the town hall of Kilkenny when Captain O'Meara received the freedom of that city. There were strong differences of opinion as to the procedure which had been adopted and at times the uproar was deafening. Captain O'Meara, on arriving in the city was received by the mayor and corporation and conducted to the town hall, where the mayor presided.

LETTER OF APOLOGY.

At the meeting, the town clerk proceeded to read a letter of apology from Mr. Patrick O'Brien, M. P. Alderman Purcell asked if Mr. O'Brien had been invited to the meeting. There were cries of "Not at all," and the alderman objected to the letter being read. A protest was also entered by Councillor Magennis, and the communication was not read. The town clerk then read an address from the corporation to Captain O'Meara after which the freedom of the city was conferred amid loud cheers.

The freedom of the city of Dublin was conferred on Captain O'Meara at a special meeting of the municipal council. When the lord mayor and Captain O'Meara entered the council chamber they were greeted with applause. There were a large attendance of members of the council, but no Unionist or Sinn Fein members were present.

The lord mayor, in asking Captain O'Meara to sign the roll of honorary freemen, referred to his trial in Manchester in 1867, and said that he respected him all the more when they found that he now gave a generous tribute of praise to the men who in later years, and under the most painful conditions, had striven honestly to win home rule.

The high sheriff said that they were bestowing on Captain O'Meara the honor which had in former years been conferred on such distinguished men as Gladstone, Parnell, and Captain O'Meara. Captain O'Meara, in replying, referred to what he and other young men tried to do for the Irish cause many years ago. In America they were now supporting the constitutional movement, and it was only fair to acknowledge that that movement had succeeded far beyond their expectations.

IRISH PARLIAMENTARIANS.

As I noted in a previous letter the Irish Parliamentarians are preparing for the general elections, which they are confident will be held before long. While it is not as expensive to run for Parliament as it is to run for Congress in some districts at least in the States a general election nevertheless means the expenditure of a large amount of money for legitimate expenses. The nationalist who is elected is not nearly so full as it might be or as indeed it should be if Ireland is to gain all that may be gained through the election. It has, therefore, been decided to send T. P. O'Connor, M. P., to America to impress upon the Irish-Americans the importance of raising the necessary campaign fund. Mr. O'Connor, or Tay Pay, as he is affectionately known on at least two continents, to say nothing of several islands, is popularly called the "fish party." He knows America about as well as he does Ireland, having made his mark there as a reporter on the New York Herald before he came to England and became an M. P.

He knows the situation on this side, none better, and can charm the birds from the trees with his eloquence. When he delivers his message to his expatriated countrymen on your side of the water there is little doubt the nationalists will have an adequate campaign fund.

NATIONALISTS' SITUATION.

The political situation as it appears to the nationalists was pretty well outlined in a speech here to the United Irish League by Joseph Devlin, M. P. He said they were now on the eve of a general election, and he believed that when it was over the only party that would remain would be the Irish party. The Liberals or the Tories might come back with a small majority, but neither could carry on the work of the government of England unless Ireland received not only a substantial but a real concession of a measure of home rule. With references to the question of the schools he said the Roman Catholic interests could only be preserved by adherence to the policy of the Irish party. If the Liberals came back they would not attempt with a majority of 20 or 30 to interfere with the Catholic schools, but that with a majority of 200 there would be no such scruples. Even the Catholic schools in England were destroyed it would only be through an unholy alliance between Anglicans and nonconformists.

FARRELL'S SPEECH.

At a nationalist meeting held at Newtownforbes, County Longford, the principal speaker was J. F. Farrell, M. P. The meeting had been called by the object of recognizing the local branch of the United Irish League. As Mr. Farrell was about to speak John Phillips, the Parliamentary representative for the southern division of the county, drew up in his car. Of late the relations between Mr. Farrell and Mr. Phillips have been somewhat strained and when the latter asked to be heard by the people a scene of confusion followed. The crowd took sides immediately and fighting began. Mr. Farrell was accompanied by his friend, Mr. Phillips, and during the fighting Mr. Phillips' horse was struck and ran away. Mr. Phillips, who was standing on the car, fell to one side, but saved himself from injury by clinging to the rail of the car. After the fight Mr. Farrell and his supporters left the ground and Mr. Phillips addressed those who remained.

Rt. Rev. Mgr. O'Riordan, D. D., rector of the Irish college, Rome, is at present enjoying his well earned holidays in his native land.

DUKE OF ORLEANS JOKES ABOUT TROUBLE OF COOK AND PEARY

BRUSSELS, Oct. 23.—As a result of his three months' cruise in Arctic seas, the Duke of Orleans seems to be in a playful humor. A correspondent who interviewed him here found him, at any rate, full of jocularity at the expense of Dr. Cook and Commander Peary. The duke expresses no opinion as to the dispute which has arisen between the two rival explorers, but even supposing that both had reached the North Pole, the achievement, in his opinion, merely deserves to be classed as a good "sporting event," not in the least equal in value to the expedition on which the Norwegian Amundsen is about to start for the purpose of taking magnetic observations and soundings useful to science.

As for planting the Stars and Stripes at the North Pole, the duke said of it has aroused the Duke of Orleans to Homer's laughter. "What would you think," he asked, "of a French explorer if you saw him with his brow covered with perspiration, telegraphing to his President of the republic that he had the honor of placing the equator at the President's disposal?"

DANES DEMAND MINISTER'S DISCHARGE

100,000 People Sign Petition to King and Parliament

STOCKHOLM STRIKE IS STILL AS BAD AS EVER

Amundsen Is Planning to Make an Attempt at North-western Passage

(By ERIC GRUNDMARK.)

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 23.—The strong movement directed against the Minister of Defense, M. Christensen, with reference to the recent Alberti scandals, has resulted in the presentation to the king and to parliament of a petition signed by over 100,000 men and women calling for the minister's dismissal. The king received the deputation which presented the petition. His majesty replied that as a constitutional monarch he was unable to take cognizance of addresses on affairs of government from anyone but the people's elected representatives. He greatly regretted that such a large number of people should be so dissatisfied with the government as to be qualified to serve as a member of the Cabinet.

The king's answer greatly disappointed the demonstrators, but it has made a deep impression generally. Although public opinion has been adverse to M. Christensen, many people now think that the agitation has gone too far and become fanatical.

STRIKE SITUATION DESPERATE.

The situation in Stockholm as a result of the strike is desperate. It is conservatively estimated that there are now in Sweden not less than 60,000 men out of work. They are in extreme poverty and that they are becoming desperate is amply evidenced by the increase in the number of crimes of violence and in the finding about government buildings and in street cars dynamite bombs. There is reason to believe that these and have been up to this time more in the nature of warnings than actual attempts to cause explosions, but they indicate a condition which may lead to some awful outrages.

The government is giving serious consideration to the situation and if the big manufacturers do not soon open up their establishments and give employment to the unemployed, the government is prepared to undertake important public work in the nature of road work, largely, which will absorb a large number of the unemployed.

TO PROTECT THE CAPITAL.

The Danish Government has taken steps with a view to the proper protection of Copenhagen in the event of a strike. The capital is situated on the south of the capital, and those added to the forces which already exist, will render it impossible for the strikers to reach the city. It has, however, also been decided that the fortifications, which are situated on the coast of the city, shall be destroyed in 1922. The navy is to be strengthened by additional torpedo boats and submarines, and the army is in some important respects practically to be reorganized.

AMUNDSEN TRY AGAIN.

I learned from Captain Fridtjof Amundsen will make another attempt to solve the problem of the northwest passage next winter. He will start in the Fram, Nansen's famous ship, and with a carefully selected crew, he will leave Norway in the autumn, proceeding directly to the north end of the North American continent. Point Barrow, Alaska will be his first objective, and he will reach the latter part of July next and shortly after, the battle with the northern ice will begin. Amundsen is very confident of repeating his feat of doubling the northern end of North America, and of adding largely to human knowledge as to the Arctic circle.

TELEPATHY SAID TO CAUSE DEATH

Injured Swedish General Tells of a Vision He Had of Murder

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 23.—Swedish scientists are interested in a remarkable case of telepathy connected with the murder of General Beckmann last June. The facts, which are vouched for by a doctor and several hospital nurses, are as follows: At the time of General Beckmann's assassination, General Bjorlin, one of his intimate friends, was lying in a hospital. On the day of the tragedy he was very ill, and frequently mentioned General Beckmann to the attendants as being in great danger.

At 11 p. m. he suddenly became widely agitated, and jumping from the bed tried to rush from the room shouting that he must go to his friend and help him. He heard the shooting in the street," he cried. "Beckmann has been shot dead, I tell you."

General Bjorlin remained in this delirious state until six in the morning, when he died. He was buried in the morning, and his death was reported to the nurse, he said: "You will see that General Beckmann has been murdered."

This statement was confirmed when the morning papers were brought in containing the story of the assassination.

OFFICIAL REPORT ON CONGO STATE IS READY

BRUSSELS, Oct. 23.—The full and official report of the Congo State, which the Belgian colonial minister is preparing, will soon be ready. In the meanwhile he has outlined a scheme of reforms which may be regarded as fairly satisfactory. He proposes to reorganize the customs dues and taxes, to establish a proper system of currency, to create schools for the instruction of natives, to build roads and railways, and to promote a policy of the "open door" in the matter of trade. It is to be noticed, however, that in regard to "atrocities" M. Renfin professes his ignorance of the existence of such misdeeds, and insists that the Belgian Congo is no worse than any other part of Africa.

AMBASSADOR STRAUS WORSHIPS IN SYNAGOGUE

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 23.—The Hon. Oscar Straus, the new American ambassador, who arrived here the other day to take up his duties, lost no time in publicly identifying himself with the Jewish community. On the day of Atonement he worshipped in the principal synagogue of the capital, the congregation making special preparations in his honor. On his arrival in Constantinople he was formally welcomed by the Turkish chief rabbi.

GERMANY'S FRIENDSHIP WITH RUSSIA IS SERIOUSLY STRAINED

Man Who Really Is Governing in Persia

The Little Shah is only thirteen years of age (he will be crowned when he is sixteen), so the government of his troubled country has been put into the hands of a Regent, Assad-ul-Mulk, who is head of the Kajar tribe. He is an eminently honest man—"a somewhat rare character in Persia," writes the correspondent who sent the picture, which has been placed in a Persian carpet, photographed by kind permission of Sir William Treloar.

FORMER SULTAN WANTS TO TRAVEL

Very Particularly Asks That He Be Allowed to Visit in England

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 23.—It is stated that the ex-Sultan has preferred a formal request to be permitted to travel and in particular to visit England. Ahmed Bey, the acknowledged leader of the Young Turks, is against the project, because he believes it would lead to complications, but certain other leaders of his party are in its favor, because they desire to be relieved of an embarrassment for the ex-Sultan and his destiny constitute a problem they desire not to be compelled to solve. What is more, they hold that his anxiety to travel is rendered the easier of concession by reason of the fact that he is desirous of going without his harem and as a private person. Turkey, they hold, would then be relieved of him, if only for a time, and meanwhile the problem might become less difficult of solution.

CARNEGIE'S PRESENT OF MASTODON TO AUSTRIA

VIENNA, Oct. 23.—Great interest has been manifested here in the model of the antediluvian Carnegie Diplodocus which Mr. Carnegie forwarded to Vienna as a present for the Emperor Francis Joseph. By the Emperor's orders, the imitation Diplodocus was placed in the Natural History Museum, where Dr. Holland, the director of the Carnegie Institut, sent expressly by Mr. Carnegie for the purpose, superintended the necessary setting up.

The other afternoon the monarch visited the Museum to inspect the present. The Emperor examined the enormous model with the greatest interest and repeatedly expressed his admiration for the labors of Mr. Carnegie, and desired Dr. Holland to convey his special acknowledgments to the sender. His Majesty then spoke to Dr. Holland upon Mr. Carnegie's philanthropic efforts, and made special inquiries concerning his new fund for the relief of the poor. He said: "You will see that General Beckmann has been murdered."

SPANISH PEOPLE QUIET WHEN VICTORIES COME

MADRID, Oct. 23.—The recent victories obtained in the Rif region and the prospect of an early termination being put to the war have had a tranquillizing effect on the Spanish people. Even in Barcelona, ever a hotbed of discontent and sedition, the situation is reported to be greatly improved. There is, in brief, a more promising outlook in every direction.

KING OF SPAIN IS TO DINE THE KING OF PORTUGAL

LISBON, Oct. 23.—King Manuel will leave Lisbon on November 7 by special train for Madrid. King Alfonso will give a banquet at the royal palace in honor of his guest, and there will be an excursion to the Escorial and a military review.

The Marquis de Soveral will await the King's arrival at Chelchbourg, both crossing to Portsmouth in the royal yacht Victoria and Albert. The fall extent of King Manuel's stay in England will be fourteen days. From London he goes to Paris, where he remains seven days, residing at the Hotel Bristol. Although traveling incognito, a banquet will be given at the Elysees and a shoot arranged at Rambouillet in his honor by President Fallieres.

TARTAR OFFICER THRASHED BY CONSUL

Manchurian Firm Refused to Pay the Imports Levied in Harbin

ANOTHER BIG OIL STRIKE MADE IN KUBAN DISTRICT

Former Director of Russian Police Now in Siberia Is Being Badly Treated

(By GEORGE FRASER.)

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 23.—A full account of the serious incident between the German Consul, and the Russian authorities at Harbin, in Manchuria, is now published, together with the particulars of an even more serious dispute between the same parties.

A German business firm in Harbin, trading under the name of Harmana, refused to pay the imports levied by the Russian authorities, and had the support of the German Consul, Herr von Muller, who tore up the Russian official documents served on the firm. This was the first incident. The second is a sequel to it.

It is stated that Herr von Muller openly refused to recognize Russian authority within the Russian settlement. He is declared to have ill-treated, and even to have thrashed, a high Russian official who was in charge of the proceedings against the German firm. This time, the newspapers declare, the incident may have consequences.

IMMENSE OIL WELL.

Official confirmation has been received here of an immense fountain of asphalt which appeared in the Kuban district after a boring of only 30 fathoms. According to the Bourse Gazette General Bahitch, commanding the Kuban Cosacks, has telegraphed to headquarters reporting that the fountain is of enormous proportions, and appeared near Waskop. The oil caught fire, but the fire has now been extinguished. The Novoe Vremya and other papers comment on the economic possibilities of the event. It is estimated that the yield of the fountain before the fire was 4000 tons daily, and since the fire 1500 tons.

AGAINST THE TALKING MACHINES.

The people here have discovered that martial law has its advantages as well as its drawbacks. For some time St. Petersburg has been suffering from too much gramophone. Business men, students, writers deluged the chief of police with letters imploring him to save them from the torture of its metal voice. Thanks to the fact that St. Petersburg is under that form of martial law known as extraordinary protection he was able to help them. An order was issued that gramophones were only to be played behind closed doors and windows. But the remedy was useless. More letters were showered on the chief explaining that the machines employed by the devotees of mechanical music were so powerful that nothing short of suppression would meet the case. The chief has now forbidden the use of gramophones in the entire central district and in other parts of the city frequented by business men.

EXILE BADLY TREATED.

It is stated here that M. Lopukin, the ex-Director of the Russian Police who was exiled to Siberia for giving information in regard to the spy Anett, is not being treated with the great consideration he was reported to be, as he has been given to understand by the authorities that he is to expect no favors or concessions in Siberia. He sent a petition to the local authority for permission to go into the town of Kramoyask, which is within a few miles of the miserable hamlet where he is forced to live, when occasion arose. The request was peremptorily refused.

Great interest has been aroused here in the trial of a young man, Eckart Horn, who was charged with aiding and abetting the suicide of a girl named Matrena Prishashuk, who poisoned herself while lying under sentence of death in Kief Goal.

Horn himself was a political convict, and was serving a sentence of five years' imprisonment. He was confined with a number of other "politicals" in the cell adjoining Prishashuk's. He established communication with the condemned girl by means of taps and knocks, and she welcomed his suggestion that he should procure poison for her in order to enable her to cheat the gallows. Horn obtained the poison, and excavated the tiny hole through the wall dividing the two cells. He eventually passed the poison through the hole in the spout of a tin kettle, and after whispered farewell with Prishashuk and watched her swallow it.

He wrote a long and pathetic letter to his fiancée describing the occurrence, and it was through the seizure of this letter that his participation in the tragedy was discovered. He was tried before the Kief Court, but was acquitted.

THEFT CAUSES STRIFE.

The theft of a big gun from the St. Petersburg armory barracks has caused a great stir in military circles. Notwithstanding strict supervision and many sentries the whole of the heavy gun completely vanished during the night. Pieces of it were found today in different places and old iron shops. The Liekoff learned that four private soldiers and a commissioned officer have been arrested, but mystery still surrounds the robbery.

ART LOVERS MAY SEE AN IMMORTAL VALASQUEZ

MADRID, Oct. 23.—Local art lovers have been afforded the opportunity of seeing one of the finest examples of the art of the immortal Velasquez. It is a portrait of Olivares, the minister of Philip IV, in a standing posture and leaning on a table. The picture was painted in 1644 and left Spain in 1858, the Altamira family, its owner, having sold it for £550 to Hugh Baillie, an English collector. After passing into other hands, it became the property of Captain Holford, who has recently disposed of it to an American purchaser for a sum of nearly $100,000. Captain Holford, however, stipulated that before crossing the Atlantic the beautiful work of art should be shown to the people of his native country. It is to be noticed, however, that the picture is to be shown in the city of Madrid.

UNEARTH'S HOUSE MORE THAN 400 YEARS OLD

BERLIN, Oct. 22.—Professor Schuchardt of the Berlin Folklore Museum has unearthed the remains of a house dating back to 500 to 400 years before Christ, which was inhabited by early Germans. This is the first discovery of the kind yet made in Germany.

ABLE REVIEW OF FRENCH SOCIETY IN TIME OF THE SECOND EMPIRE

SOCIAL GLORY OF OLD TIMES IS PASSED

Marquis de Castellane Reviews a Period That Will Never Be Seen Again

SARAH BERNHARDT PLAYS PART OF LADY BOUNTIFUL

New Parisian Minister of Public Works and Post is a Busy Man

(BY PAUL VILLIERS)

PARIS, Oct. 23.—The Marquis de Castellane, father of Comte Boni de Castellane, writes very interestingly of a society under the second empire in a book which he has just published.

There is probably no Parisian now General de Galliffet is dead better qualified to speak of the Paris under the second empire than the Marquis de Castellane.

Four or five of the members of the republic when persons of real distinction were at the Elisee.

He remarks on the conservatism of the Bourbons of the times. Everybody was desperately religious. The Pope was in danger of becoming a Cossack because of Peter's Pence from France.

M. de Rochefort offered a letter to the Vatican. He signed the letter "Lionel de Rochefort" and the Vatican ladies went on pilgrimages to the shrine of Catholic veneration.

This adherence to Rome did not, however, cause them to reject the world or even the flesh if it is to judge from other parts of the book.

There were no elections. Membership of one of them was the sine qua non of social position. No fixed etiquette was observed in these drawing rooms but every one united in a hatred of the Bonapartes and the ministers of the day.

The social success was due to a few amusing things. Qualifications were not of birth or manners, but wit added to gaiety and high spirits who took a bit of a fool was considered a great asset.

The old social glory of Paris has departed. There are no more salons. That of the Princess Mathilde was the last. The routs and receptions of the republic can count as of an account. There is merely inflation of the crowd to an uncomfortable degree. The social prestige of Paris has passed to some extent, no doubt, to London.

ANENT SARAH BERNHARDT. The Crt de Paris prints a story of Sarah Bernhardt which has a character of being herself every summer leading in absolutely out of door and simple life. She plays the Lady Bountiful in the tiny commune in which she is resident. The great tragedienne gives money freely to all local and charitable objects.

With a particularly noble gesture she presented a lifeboat. She requested that it should be called after the faith of the commune and pondered the matter. They accepted the lifeboat but they declined to call it The Sarah Bernhardt.

It was argued that to put to sea a storm under the aegis of an actress how distinguished was like tempting Providence.

The mouthpiece of this sea faring seaport was the actress who had been a part of the demonstration. Grande Sarah's bounty—a fact I imagine, this little thing of Belle Isle will have to wait for its lifeboat.

IS BUSY OFFICIAL. M. Millerand, the Minister of Public Works and Post, is a busy man just now. He is considering a project for reorganization of the Paris telephone system. It is an enormous task. The public by cutting short certain formalities with regard to the registrations of letters and answers to them, is being asked to replace the clerks in the post office by lady valets.

Another project of M. Millerand's which is of considerable importance is the establishment of a sort of technical institute in the United States for the French engineers.

The young men who leave the School of Mines, Bridges and Forts are not sufficiently equipped at present, thinks the Minister. His idea is to send them for a period of six months to the United States to the institution. He is desirous of creating.

During this period they would visit the great engineering works of the United States. They would see the great bridges, the great ships, the great factories, the great mines, the great power stations, the great dams, the great canals, the great railroads, the great highways, the great cities, the great countries, the great world.

SARAH BERNHARDT, whose latest fad is playing Lady Bountiful to people in French village, where she lives.

American Women Victims of A Clever Gang of Parisian Blackmailers With a System

(BY PAUL VILLIERS)

PARIS, Oct. 23.—I understand several American women have been the victims of an extraordinarily ingenious blackmailing scheme which has been exposed by the Paris police.

One of the gang who possessed the means and appearance of a gentleman would take up his residence in a fashionable hotel where he would work his way into the confidence of the women.

His attention would be attracted to the women who were staying there alone. His attentions were of the most correct and straightforward character and seldom failed to win for him the affection of his victim.

From the ordinary courtesies and attentions of a fellow guest, the man would lead up to the stage at which he and the lady would take short walks and the town. A little later these would be extended until by slow degrees the man would succeed in taking the woman for a long ramble in the Bois de Boulogne.

On such an occasion an expedition they would be confronted apparently by two police officers in reality by the two members of the gang.

The couple would be taken to the nearest station where they could be "helped" only the production by the man of a document would cause the police to consider the matter, but they invariably did.

Thereupon the innocent woman would also empty her purse into the hands of the man. The man would then take the lady to the bank and the lady would be allowed to go home, promising that no scandal would follow.

But the blackmail did not end there. The man would then call on the lady and she would call on her and appeal for him to return to her. The man would then call on her and she would call on her and appeal for him to return to her.

On the terms of the blackmail, the man would then call on the lady and she would call on her and appeal for him to return to her.

During the coming year the eminent composer Jules Massenet will be president of the Institute of France. Since the death of the late President, the Institute has been without a president.

Other musicians have enjoyed a similar distinction and he was Ambrose Thomas of the Institute of France.

Thomas was elected president in 1885. He was a composer of the highest quality and his works are still popular.

ASQUITH TELLS ABOUT FLAG INCIDENT

No Insult Was Offered Nor Intended in Ireland Against America

NORTH GERMAN LLOYD CO. CLEAR A MILLION

British View on the United States Whose Business Sagacity Makes Them Wealthy

(BY W. E. CARSON)

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The recent hauling down of the American flag at Castlebar during the visit of Captain O'Meara and Mr. O'Callaghan to that city has been brought before parliament.

In the House of Commons Mr. O'Brien asked the prime minister whether when a public reception was given by the inhabitants of Castlebar to two citizens of the United States Sergeant Kerrigan of the Royal Irish Constabulary, ordered a policeman to haul down the United States flag from his house.

Whether this incident was regarded in the United States as an insult to the flag and whether in view of the friendly relations supposed to exist between America and Great Britain, he would cause the British ambassador at Washington to explain and to apologize for this unauthorized action on the part of Sergeant Kerrigan.

ASQUITH EXPLAINS. In reply Mr. Asquith said: "As the sergeant general of Ireland has already informed the honorable member the display of a flag on a public house is an offense against the Licensing (Ireland) Act. I understand that on several occasions the police have requested persons to remove the Union Jack when it was so displayed. It must be quite clear that no insult to the flag of the United States was attempted in the case in which the flag was ordered to be hauled down at Castlebar. It is not intended to make any communication to the government of the United States on the subject."

No representations have been made by the United States government regarding the incident and the foreign office expects none.

STEAMSHIP PROFITS. The North German Lloyd has just issued a statement showing a net profit of a million dollars for the first six months of the year, which compares with a loss of $150,000 for the corresponding periods of 1935.

Similar good figures are shown by the Hamburg-American line.

Very different was the position six months ago when the North German Lloyd was compelled to appropriate the whole of its reserve fund towards the losses meeting the loss on working of nearly $4,000,000.

At that time nearly all the big steamship companies had disastrous reports to issue for the preceding year.

The combined effects of keen competition, the decrease of emigration to the United States, consequent upon the financial crash in New York and the increase in the cost of coal were responsible for the bad state of affairs.

BLACKMAIL IS GUIDES' GRAFT

Would Make Love to Tourists and Ask for Money to Keep Quiet

PARIS, Oct. 23.—Blackmailing married women is the charge against Pierre Pineau, a dashing and debonair young man, and his friend Yvonne Borde, who made a specialty of victimizing ladies staying at mountain resorts.

Pineau is alleged, would introduce himself as a Spanish nobleman to any attractive woman at a hotel and after a short acquaintance would offer to escort her on a mountaineering expedition.

Having lured the unsuspecting woman to a lonely place in the mountains, Pineau would throw his arms around her and make love in an impassioned way.

Borde, lurking in the neighborhood, disguised as a rural policeman, would then appear and threaten to arrest them unless they paid him a large sum of money.

The women would then be taken to a room where they would be kept until their husbands were notified.

ARISTOCRATS ARE GREAT INVENTORS

Latest Is a Peer Who Has a New Kind of a Brass Tip

LONDON, Oct. 23.—Inventors are rare in the aristocracy but the Earl of Darnley, a descendant of the philosopher Erasmus, is included in the little list.

The Earl's lordship has just registered a patent brass tip which he has christened "The tippe tappet."

Other peers who may be classed as inventors include the Earl of Darnley, who was a dashing cavalry leader in the Boer war. He has invented some useful devices for use in campaigning.

The first Earl of Darnley in the way, was responsible for a "secret" war plan, which he submitted to the British Government a hundred years ago. It was rejected because it was considered "inhuman" although its terrible power was acknowledged. The plan was never revealed and remains in the archives of the war office to this day.

Another peer inventor is the Earl of Wemyss, who will be a centenarian in his sixtieth year. This venerable peer introduced a military toilet which combines a sword, a pen, a saw, and can be used as a bullet-proof shield.

A number of the prominent and wealthy members of the Liberal party are said to be much upset by the report that the Prime Minister does not intend to create any further peers until after a general election.

Mr. Asquith is said to be so impressed by the absurdity of adding to the numerical strength of the House of Lords that he has reluctantly made up his mind to make the rewards of the eminent politicians alluded to contingent upon the success of the Liberal party at the polls.

In other words he will not face the ridicule that would be cast upon him by creating what are known as dissolution peers.

Village Lad Sways Railway Systems

Edwin Hawley, Another of the Big Giants of Railway Life Raised in the School of Huntington, and Graduate of Ranks of Workers

The interest of a world is centered in the marshalling of the vast financial forces of the country which dominate its colossal transportation systems.

Beneath the placid surface of conditions, as they appear to the public, is being waged one of the greatest battles for mastery of American railroads ever recorded in the story of the finance.

From out of the surging of a strife of far less magnitude, of a decade ago, was evolved E. H. Harriman. In the record of his all victorious march to the goal of mastery over 25,000 miles of railroad track, he met with his two great defeats at the hands of a small, grey-eyed, reticent man who is now the central figure in the world of achievement—Edwin Hawley.

About him are aligned the factors whose names are magic in the story of American finance. On whisper it is born, confirmed by reiteration, that from out of these conflicting conditions is to arise another overlord of American transcontinental railway systems and that he is to be the Wellington of Harriman's waterloos which lost the latter control of the Chicago and Alton, forced him to make peace with James J. Hill and projected into the world's attention another factor among the giants of modern day achievement.

OF HUNTINGTON SCHOOL.

Hawley is a product of the Huntington school of railroading. He connects the creative conditions that came into existence when the Sacramento merchant conceived the colossal and daring project of sealing the Sierras and spanning a continent with iron rails, and carried it into execution, and the methods of today, which demand the highest efficiency in transportation and which place railroads at the very head of the world's movement securities.

It was as the confident of C. P. Huntington and the most potential factor in the group of men that the then master of transcontinental railways raised to direct the energies of his great system, that first drew the attention of Wall Street to Edwin Hawley. Huntington's judgment of men was unerring. He measured their capacity at a glance. At their first meeting, when Hawley was contracting agent in New York for a combination of Western railroads, including the Burlington, the Rock Island and the North Western, Huntington recognized Hawley's ability and made him an offer to join his brilliant galaxy of coadjutors. Hawley at first demurred to resigning from the important position that he then held as the New York representative of the Chicago combination; but Huntington persisted and the famous pioneer of transcontinental railways, who never failed in securing the men he sought to serve his interests, soon had the name of Edwin Hawley on his payroll.

HAWLEY AND HUNTINGTON.

He was made general Eastern agent for the Southern Pacific Company and shortly afterwards was raised by Huntington's orders to the position of assistant traffic manager. From that time on his powers were increased in the councils of the Southern Pacific Company and he stood first among those in whom Huntington placed confidence and who had the influence to sway his judgment.

Between Huntington and Hawley there was a bond of sympathy beyond that of railroad interests. The latter had practiced from his first intrusion into the world's activities, the precepts that Huntington preached.

One of these was that "a man's worth is judged not by what he earns, but by what he saves."

Hawley was born of well to do parents in the little town of Chatham, New York, where his father had a small paper mill. At the early age of 16 he set forth from his birth place with a carpet bag determined upon seeking in New York the opportunities for advancement that did not exist in his home town.

HAWLEY'S FIRST JOB.

He took the first job that offered and that was as messenger boy in the office of the famous Old Erie.

Out of the four dollars a week he received as wages he supported himself on $2.50 and saved fifty cents.

His next step was into the service of the Ohio and Mississippi, where his pay reached nine dollars a week and his savings were proportionately larger. Then he became billing clerk in the New York freight department of the Rock Island with his remuneration fixed at $14 a week. Having made his start in the railroading business young Hawley decided upon making it his life's profession and he acquainted himself with every detail in its ramifications. His savings as they accumulated were invested in the low priced transportation stocks and he paid in full for every share he purchased. His next step was into the position where he came in contact with C. P. Huntington and which led to his becoming a factor in the Southern Pacific system.

MAN OF RETICENCE.

One of the notable characteristics of the young railroader was his reticence. He was known to be "close mouthed." It was a quality that appealed to Huntington, whose great preachment in his philosophy was "never let any one know what you are after until you get it."

His own failure to consistently observe this rule by a too free expression of opinion concerning those who opposed him set at his heels about the worst band of snarling and vicious detractors that ever impeded the way of one of the world's really great characters.

In 1895, through a combination with the financial interests represented by the New York banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Company, E. H. Harriman rose above the horizon by his sudden acquisition of the Union Pacific railroad, which wrested from the hands of the receiver. The striding had outwitted the giant of the railway world for it was the ambition of Huntington to acquire the Union Pacific and consolidate it into the Southern Pacific system.

HARRIMAN ON THE SCENE.

Harriman was audacious and not content with having secured the prize sought by Huntington he heeded the lion in his den and demanded of the latter to fix his price for the Central Pacific. It was Huntington's prodigious product in trying his prentice hand at railroad building and he was not only agitated but angered at Harriman's demand. The old lion was aroused and when the financial world was on the tip toe of expectancy in anticipation of a gigantic struggle, Huntington died.

Then Hawley came to the fore in directing the affairs of his former chief's great railroad system. He had acquired considerable holdings of Southern Pacific stock which with those controlled by the Huntington estate made him the consequential factor in transferring the road to Harriman against the opposition of the interests held by the Crocker and Stanford estates.

GREAT GENERALSHIP.

In this deal he exhibited superb generalship and drove a bargain that enriched the Huntington estate far beyond expectations. He compelled Harriman to pay his price and while the transaction earned for him the lasting friendship of the widow and Henry E. Huntington, the nephew of the dead railroad king, it is said, it was the thorn that rankled in the memory of Harriman and led to the bitter strife which grew up between the two men.

In the reorganization of the Southern Pacific after Harriman came into possession common report had it that Hawley was to figure conspicuously in its affairs. Harriman failed, however, to carry out the understanding as rumor had it and Hawley was made only a nominal factor in its concerns.

Finding opportunity shortly afterwards to obtain control over the Chicago and Alton road, Harriman again led Hawley, who had acquired considerable share holdings in the line, into the belief that he would be provided for in its reorganization and thereby secured his support in the battle for control.

HARRIMAN'S REVENGE.

Harriman failed to forfeit his agreement and Hawley began his war upon the former, which resulted finally in the first Waterloo Harriman encountered in his marvelous career.

Hawley quietly acquired the outstanding shares of the Alton and before the railroad king could save himself Huntington's protegee was in command of the situation and Harriman routed. Not satisfied with one Waterloo for the monarch of the Southern Pacific, Hawley was quietly preparing for another. When Harriman was at the very zenith of his power and preparing to give the death blow to James J. Hill of the Great Northern, his hand was stayed. Hawley came to the front as the master of the situation and he was on the side of Hill.

HAWLEY'S INTUITION.

He had acquired control of the Colorado Southern, a road running out of Pueblo, Colo., and extending down into Texas. It was bankrupt when he acquired it and was generally regarded as one of the jokes of the railroad world. Hawley purchased it for $2,500,000 and he made trading connections and improved it so that it paid expenses and something in the way of dividends. Then the Harriman-Hill fight came on and the railroad chieftains suddenly awoke to the great strategic value of Hawley's Colorado railway.

In Hill's hands it would prove a powerful adjunct in the war against Harriman. It invaded the southern field where Harriman reigned supreme and it was a medium that would serve to divert a great share of the southern cotton crop, destined for Oriental ports, from Harriman's Pacific Mail steamers to Hill's fleet running out of Seattle.

Hawley had not been oblivious to its possibilities and when the battle started Harriman discovered too late that the man who had ousted him from the Alton stood over him again with the drawn sword.

Harriman was compelled to sue for terms. Peace was established and the Colorado Southern became enrolled in the Hill system at a net profit to Hawley of $500,000.

It is his foresight, his superb knowledge of traffic affairs and his ability to wait that have contributed to the rise of Hawley to the position he at present holds in American railroad affairs. He has no confidantes. He is patient, alert, reticent and enduring. He shuns publicity and associations and yet he has at his beck and call hundreds of millions of dollars held in the coffers of the greatest financial factors of the day.

AN UPBUILDER.

He possesses the masterful facility of infusing the magic of prosperity into bankrupt railroads and out of disconnected lines his generalship welds systems.

One of the Few Men Who Fought the Late E. H. Harriman on His Own Field and Won a Victory

While he stands fourth on the list of the railway sovereigns of the day with 4870 miles of trackage to his credit his position is impregnable. He owns the Minneapolis and St. Louis, the Chesapeake and Ohio, Chicago and Alton, Iowa Central and Toledo, St. Louis and Western. In mileage he is exceeded by the Harriman system, the Goulds and Hill, but by virtue of his roads being "key routes" he is in a position to secure powerful alliances and wage ruinous warfare.

He is the greatest genius in American railroading of today. He is practically equipped to direct any department of the great science of transportation and he is learned in the conditions of the west which his association with Huntington and director of Southern Pacific affairs gave him minute insight. His friendship for this coast has been demonstrated.

His closest friends are Californians, Henry E. Huntington and George Crocker, and he reveres the memory of C. P. Huntington, whose portrait hangs in his New York office.

HIS RISE EXPECTED.

He is the antithesis of Harriman in method and the equal of Huntington in his knowledge of the practical side of railroading. He is audacious and yet he takes no steps in retreat.

His maxim is "Work and Wait." The rise of Mr. Hawley to the supreme control of American railways would not occasion surprise. It is among the auguries of those in close and intimate touch with the trend of events.

The story of the past tells of the rise of Scott, Huntington, Gould and Harriman as autocrats of the railway world and each succeeding dynasty has eclipsed the preceding one in the greater augmentation of trackage under its sway. The Hawley reign when it comes, and it is probably only a matter of the hours, it not already here, will surpass the sway of a Harriman by many thousands of miles of railways. The age is becoming colossal in its organizations and transportation systems are growing stupendous in magnitude.

Mr. Hawley, who is designated as the Sphinx of the railway domain, is unmythical. He is the proponent of no fad, his recreation a work and his relaxation is in reading traffic managers' reports. He is unostentatious in manner, eschews publicity and is intensely American. His chief characteristic is loyalty to friends and supporters, and like his preceptor C. P. Huntington, when slapped on one cheek he will not fail to return the compliment with a wise interest.

PROTEST AGAINST GIRL'S MARRIAGE WITH TURK

PARIS, Oct. 22.—Here is a story of an orphan girl and a terrible Turk:

Miss Carry Fellows, 19 years old, and a beautiful orphan, left Cooperstown, N. Y., where her guardians reside, on a visit to her aunt, Miss Jean Forbes, who has an apartment in Rome. There she met Ibrahim Bey, secretary of the Turkish legation and son of Zif Facha, formerly Turkish minister to Berlin. He was greatly taken by the American beauty, promptly proposed and was accepted.

When her guardians over the sea learned that a Turk had won the heart of their fair young ward, they had a vision of a horrible Turk, with a locked harem, veiled wives and gigantic blacks armed with scimitars. They wildly called her to return at once. Miss Fellows answered: "Will return in order to show my obedience, but not without my Turk. I will stop in America two weeks. In that time I will marry him."

Together they sailed on La Bretagne last week and now the war of the stern guardians and the love struck orphan is transferred to Cooperstown.

Miss Fellows says she was fascinated by the soft Oriental eyes of the terrible Turk. Ibrahim Bey is not really terrible. He is, indeed, a new Turk with all modern improvements and a great social favorite in Roman society.

Otis F. Johnson sacrificed himself yesterday during the Portola automobile race to save his fiancée from injury. She escaped by a hair's breadth, but he was mowed down by a wild racing auto and received injuries which probably will result in his death.

Miss Grace Murphy, who resides at Fifteenth and Madison streets, was standing with Johnson, a bookkeeper of the Fisher-Turner Company, near Stanley road, watching the race. On the boulevard when car No. 11, a V-8 machine, driven by Frank Lee, became tampered with and ran off the course at four o'clock, Johnson saw it coming in its mad flight.

Johnson first tried to scream, but when he saw that injury was inevitable he threw his sweetheart to one side. He himself was struck and hurled through the air.

BACK IS BROKEN

He was taken to the County Infirmary where it was found he had sustained a broken back.

Johnson was standing in a little orchard when the accident occurred. That orchard was not mowed for some time, and the ground was recently broken up and the heavy car came to a stop after plowing a furrow one hundred feet through the rough ground.

Johnson said after the accident that his spine was broken in two places. As his car approached the curve, he saw the car coming and he was turning about thirty miles when the car struck him.

The car, which Johnson was driving with Joseph Robinson, a mechanic, had been averaging close to sixty miles an hour when the accident occurred.

Speed Feats Fascinate Multitude Course Proves to Be Unexcelled

Sport Is Marred by Three Accidents During the Races

BY EDDIE SMITH.
THE California classic in automobile racing has been run and Jack Fleming, at the wheel of a Pope-Hartford car, is the hero of the greatest event in automobile history ever held in the West. World's records went a-glimmering in the race of yesterday and perhaps the time will never come when such a successful contest of speed will be held within the State of California.

It was truly a California day—one of the sort we are proud of. Old Sol showed himself early and all during the wonderful exhibition of speed the sun shined and the beautiful sloping hills of Alameda county proved a most fitting background to the far-famed Foothill Boulevard and county road over which the event, destined to go down in history, was run.

At least 200,000 people witnessed the race from the various points of view and California's beautiful women never showed to better advantage. With cheeks flushed with excitement and garbed in the light summery flattery that California allows at this time of the year, the entire course was lined with the beauties that California is proud of.

And as for the arrangements of the affair, nothing I might say would even half describe the perfectness of it and no praise I could offer would prove sufficient for the committee that had the affair in charge. Suffice it to say that Oakland did herself proud in the handling of the event, for there has never been anything like it on this coast, and I dare say this glorious country never boasted a better arranged and handled contest of speed than the automobile classic of yesterday.

Thirty-two men, a driver and mechanic for each of the sixteen cars, faced the starter with grim determination in every feature of their faces and a coolness little short of marvelous. Reckless carelessness—no, that hardly fits, daredevilry—no, that is also too tame—shaking hands with death might fit, but defying death, pictures the scene better.

LAUGH AT DEATH.
Each one of the gritty, wild men who faced the starter of yesterday, and his life to the wild winds of chance when he began his long journey, but not one flinched in the severest test of grit and risk that man could be put to, and this fact made it possible for Fleming, in his Pope-Hartford, to establish a new world's record for average speed in a race of this character.

As the men took the various turns of the road, with their machines skidding and jumping under their control, and their hands and feet in a constant contest with the elements, the crowd watched with subdued excitement and pretended coolness the almost impossible speed with which the fearless and daring drivers hurled their cars about the road, too safe turning points of the course.

The goddess of speed was never put to a more trying test than she was yesterday, for never before has such a pace been maintained throughout a distance of so great a length in a contest on the roads of any country.

RATTLE REMEMBERS GUNS.
When the machines lined up for the start, each to start at one minute intervals, one would have thought that a battery of light artillery had been turned loose. With each explosion of the cylinders a report was made that sounded like a gun being fired and the smoke from the burning lubricating oil shot out through the exhausts and completely covered the ground.

The flash of each machine sent a new thrill of excitement through the crowd, for every man was on the edge of his seat, and before the next driver was ready had turned the first bend of the road and was out of sight.

Ten seconds before the start of the race, the starter, a man named Hammett, raised his hand as a signal to get ready and as Starter Watson raised the revolver above his head the entire expression on the driver's and mechanics' faces changed. Prior to this they were cheerfully talking and laughing and joking in the grand stand and waving joyously to friends who cried out their good wishes. Just the moment the start was made and the race was on the track, all grand stand playing and all faces set, prepared themselves for the terrible injury to one or both, or instant death, should the least thing go wrong with the mechanism of the machine.

FIRST LAP ENDED.
The last car had gone but a short time before the Maxwell, which had been the first, turned into the DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 23.—Louis Richenstein, deputy county clerk who was bayoneted by J. D. Manley, one of the militia guards at the fair grounds, as President Taft entered the grounds today. Richenstein died tonight.

It is said he was trying to get through the line, although he was inside the rope when stabbed. Manley is a sergeant in a Dallas company. Richenstein belonged to a well-known family here and has been in local politics for many years.

His friends are making threats against Sergeant Manley, who has been locked up on a charge of murder. Manley declined to make any statement beyond saying that he had done his duty.

After the fair grounds meeting the President was caught in a crowd at the Oriental Hotel and had to elbow his way through it. He attended a banquet here this evening.

Splendid Auto Races Bring Fame to Oakland

LAYMANCE WINS PRAISE OF EXPERTS

Success of Meet Largely Due to Chairman's Efforts

LOCAL MEET FAVORABLY COMPARED WITH OTHERS

Visitors Declare European Races Did Not Surpass Portola Events

M. J. Laymance, chairman of the Oakland Portola committee, was congratulated on all sides for the great success that had been achieved. M. H. De Young, proprietor of the San Francisco Chronicle, and who has attended the great automobile events held in Europe, was among the most enthusiastic of those who congratulated Mr. Laymance.

"I feel that Oakland and Alameda county have covered themselves with glory in the success of today's auto race," said Mr. Laymance, who modestly refused to take more than a fractional part of the credit that is his due for arranging the many details that contributed to the achievement.

"There were many who had attended the big Eastern and European races who were sincere in their declarations that the events held on this side of the bay did not suffer in comparison.

"The course was in perfect condition and there was nothing to mar the success of the day, except two unfortunate accidents, which, of course, happen even under other conditions. We put forth every effort to effectively guard the course.

EFFECTIVE PATROL.
"There were 300 members of the National Guard under Colonel D. S. Smith patrolling the course, and Sheriff Barnett had 150 deputies judiciously placed. Besides Chief of Police Wilson kindly assisted with two score of his men, who were off duty and volunteered their services.

"The police departments of San Leandro and Hayward and the constables, with their deputies, all co-operated to provide a force that guarded every foot of the way along the course.

"It will be a tremendous advertisement for Oakland and Alameda county. It served to open the eyes of many thousands of people as to what we have over here, and many that I talked with were enthusiastic over our highways. The foothill boulevard, as well as other roads forming the course could not have been in finer condition. We were surely well advertised in today's races."

REFEREE ENTHUSIASTIC.
L. P. Rowe, one of the committee under whose direction the Vanderbilt cup races were held, and who courteously put his services as referee of today's races at the disposal of the Oakland committee, said: "They were the best conducted races I have ever attended. Every detail of arrangements essential to the success of the day was well provided for. You have the location here for holding such events, and I am confident this is not the last of automobile events that will be held over this course."

Hon. M. H. De Young, proprietor of the San Francisco Chronicle, kindly officiated as one of the three judges of the day. The well-known publisher has attended several of world-famous auto races held in Europe, and his commendation of the events held in Oakland were without qualification. "It was a grand success," said Mr. De Young. "Every detail was provided for and speed records were broken. The Oakland committee assuredly deserves credit for its thoroughness in providing for every detail. I foresee that this will not be the last great event held over this course."

Sam Bell McKee, the prominent attorney, was among the enthusiastic spectators of the day's events.
Mr. McKee attended the famous Vanderbilt cup race, and he conceals that it did not surpass the Oakland program.
"It was magnificently conducted," said Mr. McKee. "There was not a point in the mechanism of arrangements that was not covered. It was the greatest crowd that has ever assembled in Alameda county. I cannot speak too highly of the entire affair."

JACK BINNS TIRED OF SHOW LIFE, SEEKS A JOB

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Tired of notoriety and the show business Jack Binns, wireless operator of the ill-fated Republic, sailed today for Southampton.
Binns is going to the main office of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company in London and probably will be assigned to a ship. He is doing with theatricals.

DEATH RIDES WITH RACERS AND MARKS TWO VICTIMS

A. J. LINZ, mechanic of Maxwell Car No. 1, whose face was badly cut today when machinery in racing car broke.

FLYING TIRE MAY CAR SKIDS INTO COST MAN'S LIFE

Racing automobile drivers declare the accident which may cost the life of C. H. McKittick, the Fitchburg man, who was struck by a flying tire cast by the Sunset car, No. 2, to have been the most peculiar one in their experiences in many races.
McKittick was standing alongside the course at the corner of Deering avenue and East Fourteenth street when the Sunset car rounded the curve. The machine was apparently going well when suddenly the tire was shot toward the crowd, striking McKittick in the breast, knocking him down and rendering him unconscious.
At the Alameda Sanitarium it was said last night at a late hour that McKittick was still unconscious and that it was believed he was suffering from concussion of the brain. The physicians declared that so far as their examination had gone, he was not suffering from a fractured skull.
No ribs were broken when the flying tire struck McKittick in the chest, but the blow may produce internal injuries.
McKittick is a farmer and resides with his wife and three children in Fitchburg.

Stearns Car Speeded at Over Mile a Minute Rate

The Stearns car No. 15 was the only car besides the winner to cover more than two circuits of the course in less than twenty minutes. The Stearns had trouble going in the early laps, and at intervals during the long race, but occasionally Driver Miner opened her up wide and chopped off the miles with terrific speed.
The third lap was completed by the Stearns in 19.40, the fourth in 19.37, the fifth in 19.31, the eighth in 19.24 and the ninth in 19.23.

No. 15 experienced tire troubles and also had trouble in getting her engines to working right.
The other cars to cover the circuit inside of the twenty-minute mark were: Apperson, No. 1, tenth lap in 19.23; second in 19.17.
Stearns, No. 15, seventh lap in 19.33.

CAR SKIDS INTO CROWD; ONE DYING

Little hope is held out for the recovery of O. H. Johnson, the man run down by Knox car, No. 11, on the Boulevard, near Stanley road, in the Oakland Portola road races yesterday afternoon.
Johnson was standing with a young woman friend beside the course at the time of the accident. The Knox car was negotiating the slight curve in the road at that point when something went wrong and the car skidded into the onlookers by the roadside. All escaped except Johnson, who was struck down by the car. Frank Free was driver of the racer. At the County Infirmary, where Johnson was taken after the accident, it was declared last night that he could not live. The injured man has a broken back and internal injuries and a terrible gash in his leg almost nine inches in length.
After striking Johnson, the Knox car crashed into a tree, completely wrecking the machine. A young lady whose identity could not be learned and who accompanied the injured man to the races had a narrow escape, being shoved to one side by Johnson in the nick of time to save her life. Witnesses of the accident say that had Johnson not saved the young woman, he could have escaped injury himself. He is book-keeper for the Fisher Lumber Company.

Little Autocar Is a Game Contestant With Giants

The little Autocar, No. 3, driven by Walter C. Morris, after capturing second place in the second event, retired from the race, as it was entered only for this event.
The cash award for the winner of second place in this event was $200.
Morris made valiant efforts to carry his car to the front and to take first place in this event, but the speedy Pope-Hartford was too much for the smaller car. The Autocar's fastest time was in the first lap, when it negotiated the twenty-one and one-third miles in 22 minutes and 3 seconds, which, compared with the performances of cars with more piston displacement was a remarkable feat.

CLASSIC AUTO RACES END WITH BURST OF GLORY

stretch of the road that lay before the grand stand and came speeding by with the first lap of the great event covered. As each machine went flying by the stand the crowd cheered the drivers on and waved their flags as signs of encouragement. The rapidly disappearing machines trembled and shook and skidded under the speed at which they were being driven, and the spectators marveled at the daring of the drivers and mechanics.

In the first few laps the space of time between each car going by was so short that the spectators had hardly settled down after one thrilling sight than the official track man, with red flag waving over his head, announced the approach of another car. Then all eyes turned toward the car, which, a mile or so away, resembled a gray streak, and almost before one determined the number of the contestant a rattle of cylinder explosion and a puff of smoke would whizz by the stand. The withheld breath of the excited onlookers told the story of the tension under which each was laboring.

With the dropping out of cars that had suffered misfortune the passing grew to greater intervals and the crowds had a chance to marvel at the grit and gameness of the participants, but never once during the twelve laps of the race did the excitement subside, and when Jack Fleming was sighted after he had made the turn of the last lap, a mighty roar went up from the grand stand and along the road, and the game young man was given a reception such as the winner of such an event warranted.

WINNER GAME DRIVER.
Throughout the entire distance Fleming drove an excellent race. He held his car steady and made the turns perfectly. Dame Fortune favored him and he suffered no serious trouble. In reality the Pope-Hartford won all three events, but it could not qualify for the second event, and for that reason the cup goes to the Apperson Jack rabbit from Los Angeles, driven by Harris Henshew.

Not only did the Pope-Hartford carry away the honors at the automobile races yesterday by covering 258 miles in 3 hours, 55 minutes and 18 seconds, but it was also the fastest car ahead of its nearest competitor, but it made the fastest time for any one lap, covering the distance of 21 1/4 miles in 18 minutes, 50 seconds. Then the car almost repeated this operation by again making the distance around the course in 18 minutes, 52 seconds. Its average for the entire race was a mile in 54 seconds.

The closest competitor for the time around the course was the Apperson car, which covered the tenth lap in 19 minutes, 23 seconds. The Stearns No. 15 made the eighth lap in 19 minutes, 24 seconds.

Tire Troubles Twice Beset the Sunset's Grifty Crew

Just to show that they were still able to negotiate a few miles more, Driver Harold Hall and mechanic Macbreen of Sunset car No. 2 brought their machine through for two added laps after they had taken more than two hours to complete the first circumference of the course. The Sunset was the victim of the hardest of racing luck. The car had barely traversed three hundred yards of the course after getting off to a good start for the first lap when a bursting tire necessitated a stop in full view of the grandstand.

A new tire was hastily put on and Hall continued around the course to within a few miles of Hayward when another tire and trouble with machinery necessitated another stop. It took almost two hours to make repairs, but when they were completed the Sunset started out again. The covering of the course was only, however, to show that the car was able to continue, as Hall left the track after completing two laps. The reappearance of the racer after the long delay was greeted by the crowd in the grandstand with lusty cheers.

Winning Car Gathers Cash Prizes of $2700

Pope-Hartford No. 4, in winning the first event of 150 miles and the third and final event of 250 miles carried away cash prizes of $2700 and the Orpheum Orpheum. Their management to the winner of the first event.

The winning of the Pope-Hartford was due not only to its clever handling by Driver Jack Fleming and Mechanician Traver, but also to the quick work of the mechanics at the Pope-Hartford control just below the grandstand.

When the winning machine headed into the control with a broken tank in the eighth lap a complete change of tires was made and the broken tank replaced in the short time of eight minutes.

just deserts in the race of yesterday and all Alameda county should be proud. It is a big boost for Alameda's roads. As has already been said, no praise that any writer might give the committee would prove sufficient and the 20,000 or more people who lined the course will bear witness to the fact that Oakland handled the automobile classic of California in a manner which she can well afford to be proud of.

POPE-HARTFORD CAR CAPTURES ALL HONORS

Finishes First, Covers Fastest Lap, and Breaks Record for Course

AVERAGE GAIT OF WINNER IS 54 SECONDS PER MILE

Apperson Car Wins Second Prize and Second Race, Behind Victor

Not only did the Pope-Hartford carry away the honors at the automobile races yesterday by covering 258 miles in 3 hours, 55 minutes and 18 seconds, but it was also the fastest car ahead of its nearest competitor, but it made the fastest time for any one lap, covering the distance of 21 1/4 miles in 18 minutes, 50 seconds. Then the car almost repeated this operation by again making the distance around the course in 18 minutes, 52 seconds. Its average for the entire race was a mile in 54 seconds.

The closest competitor for the time around the course was the Apperson car, which covered the tenth lap in 19 minutes, 23 seconds. The Stearns No. 15 made the eighth lap in 19 minutes, 24 seconds.

WINS TWO RACES.

The Pope-Hartford car won first place in two of the races of the day, carrying away first honors in the first race by covering the seven laps of 150 miles in 2 hours, 15 minutes, 23 seconds. The Autocar captured second place in this race, covering the distance in 2 hours, 49 minutes, 23 seconds.

In the second race the Apperson car covered the entire distance in 3 hours, 51 minutes, 26 seconds, winning the race. The Pope-Hartford car covered the same number of laps in 3 hours, 19 minutes, 14 seconds, but was not entered in this race, and the Lozier, driven by Michener, took second place in 3 hours, 42 minutes, 18 seconds.

LIGHTNING SPEED.

The Pope-Hartford car in the big race averaged 64.25 miles an hour, but in the sixth lap it made the 21.5 miles at an average of 53 seconds per mile, or at the rate of 68 miles an hour. Here are its records for the various laps:

First, 20 minutes 7 seconds; second, 19 minutes 9 seconds; third, 19 minutes 40 seconds; fourth, 18 minutes 52 seconds; fifth, 19 minutes 25 seconds; sixth, 18 minutes 50 seconds; seventh, 18 minutes 20 seconds; eighth, 27 minutes 23 seconds; ninth, 19 minutes 23 seconds; tenth, 19 minutes 5 seconds; eleventh, 19 minutes 1 second; twelfth, 19 minutes 3 seconds.

During the eighth lap the car was stopped and four new tires put on, the loss of time thereby incurred being a fraction over 8 minutes.

Fleming Was Master In Piloting Car at Curves

The skill of Driver Jack Fleming in negotiating the sharp turns at Deering avenue and at B street on the Hayward end of the course were more conducive than anything else to the excellent time which the winning Pope-Hartford No. 4 car made.

Fleming took the four sharp corners which make up the course at opposite ends at barely less speed than he maintained on the straightaway. Many times when the Pope-Hartford went around the turn on Deering avenue onto East Fourteenth street, the crowd, in expectation of the car crashing into the fence, held their breath and many were heard to predict that Fleming's recklessness would end in disaster before the race was finished.

Maxwell Meets With Local Course Finest in World, Says Fleming

An accident to the machinery and to the mechanism put the Maxwell car, No. 1, out of the race after it had made an imposing show in the first lap of the big race.

The Maxwell, which was first to face the starter's pistol, held its lead of first place with a good margin to spare in the first lap and was going at a 65-mile an hour gait when it passed the grandstand for the first time. Driver King was making record time until near Hayward, when the machinery broke, casting several particles of steel into the face of the mechanician, A. J. Linz, and disabling the car from further competition in the race.

Linz was taken into one of the field hospitals nearby and his injured face dressed. He refused to go to the County Infirmary and remained with King in an effort to repair the disabled car. His injuries, while not serious, are extremely painful. It was feared at first that he would lose the sight of one eye. The optic, however, was not seriously injured.

Death Curve Thrills the Throngs of Spectators

The fascination of Death Curve drew thousands of spectators to that point. The course on both sides of the "S" shaped roadway at this point was lined by immense crowds who taboed the comfortable seats in the grandstand in hopes of being right on the ground in the event an accident occurred in the negotiating the most dangerous portion of the race route.

The crowd was well repaid for taking up their posts here, for the race proved one succession of thrills for them. Few cars slowed up a particle in getting by the dangerous double turn, taking each curve with a terrific skid and kicking up clouds of dust into the faces of the onlookers.

Hayward Declares a Holiday During Road Race

A holiday was declared by the business men of Hayward in order that they and their employees might enjoy the automobile races. Town councilmen, lawyers and prominent citizens acted as deputy marshals along the course. Members of Company H, Fifth Regiment, National Guard, located at Hayward, in command of Captain J. J. Boree and Lieutenants J. H. Holcombe and D. D. Smaller, did excellent service in polling the lines.

The men were stationed along Castro street, B street and the boulevard. At Castro and B street the turn was a hair-raising one. In the first round many of the cars were unable to make the turn and were forced to continue down Castro street for at least fifty yards before they could stop, back up and then continue on the course. Earth was banked against the sidewalk in front of Silver & Perera's store, which prevented the cars from skidding into the plate glass windows. Further up B street was the turn into the Boulevard. In most instances they rounded the corner with two wheels.

FATALITY RIFE IN LEGACY OF WOMAN

Former San Francisco Jeweler's Wife Bequeaths a Hoodoo to Her Heirs

VEILED IN MYSTERY

Was Friend and Favorite of the Last French Emperor

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Awed by the "hoodoo" that has resulted in the death of five of the principals and two of the lawyers in the famous Margaretta Todd will contest in the courts the remaining contestants today agreed upon a compromise. The case was to have come up for trial in the Supreme Court next Friday. Speaking of the "hoodoo," Theron Davis, one of the attorneys in the case, said today: "In addition to the five principals and two lawyers who have already died, two other parties involved are now critically ill. It is no exaggeration to say that these seemed to be a 'hoodoo' that I believe would wipe away all of those who figure in the case before the courts would finally settle the dispute."

CONTESTANTS PASSED AWAY.
By the terms of the compromise three estates of those who have died since the fight began will share in the distribution of the Todd fortune. These are the estates of Mrs. Roselle Tousey Hastings, Edward Stenhouse and Jennie E. Payne. Others who will get a slice of the cash are Carl Stenhouse, Gerald Stenhouse and Rebecca Stenhouse. There will be the fees for the lawyers.

No one has ever been able to discover in what manner Margaretta Todd came to her death. Her mangled corpse, sparkling with the jewels that were a passion with her while alive, was found on October 27, 1905, beside the railroad tracks in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia. Her head and legs were partly crushed. Like many of the chapters of her dramatic career, her last hours were veiled in mystery. At the time of her death she was 80 years old.

She came of an old German family of Baltimore, where she was known as "Margaretta von Hoffman, the Belle." As the wife of Milton Andrews, a wealthy jeweler of San Francisco, she came first into public notice. The days she spent in his home at the Golden Gate and her triumph as a social leader. With him in a year they were divorced. Mrs. Andrews died for Paris.

FRIEND OF EMPEROR.
Her marvelous beauty made her the friend of Napoleon III, and she had to have lavish gifts worthy of an empress upon her. She was in fact the belle of the last ball on the eve of the Franco-Prussian war. To her he gave the honor of dancing with the ruler who was to end with the downfall of the third empire.

She returned to New York under the name of Madame Margaretta von Hoffman in the early seventies and set up a court of beauty in Irving place, which soon became the Mecca for Tammany politicians of the Tweed regime. A few years later she established furnished apartments in West Twenty-sixth street, where Daniel O'Connell and associates of James Fisk and Jay Gould lived for some time. While living here she married Jonathan Weatherford, who died shortly afterward, leaving her in possession of a large fortune.

Another man who rented a room in her establishment was Louis L. Todd, one-time proprietor of the Vendome and the Hotel Marlborough. On August 14, 1882, she caused to be published in a New York paper a report of her marriage to Mr. Todd at Stogingen, Conn. Since that day she had been known as Margaretta Todd, although Mr. Todd had denied the relationship.

In her late years she was noted for her eccentricities. She made wills and destroyed them; fought with her lawyers and then disregarded the advice of everyone and had her own way. She had built a secret draw in a Louis XV table, where she kept her secret gems, worth $25,000.

MYSTERIOUS DEATH.
On the afternoon of October 6, 1905, she clothed herself in the finest silk, decked herself with eight diamond rings, diamond earrings and a diamond brooch. Against the protest of her associates, she called a cab and, together with a Miss "Knight," left her hotel. The following day her body was found beside the railroad tracks. Her pulse was nearly empty, but her jewels were intact.

An investigation that kept the police busy for months followed. Either murder or suicide may have been her fate. Detectives who followed the winding trail from New York to the spot where her body was found decided that it was a physical inability for her to have caused her own death. A 10-foot wall and a 30-foot embankment blocked the path to the railroad tracks. It is supposed that she was dead before the train severed her limbs.

Her daughter, born shortly after her divorce from Andrews, became the wife of Frank Tousey, the publisher. One of her intimate friends and associates was Emerson Lockwood. He was a son of a British family of note, an author and well-known clubman.

Immediately after her death Lockwood announced that he had the last will of Mrs. Todd in his possession; that he was the executor of her estate, and also the legal custodian of the estate of the dead woman.

Lockwood was accused subsequently of conspiring to graft all the Todd estate. Lockwood was ousted and Mrs. Tousey was awarded the income from a trust fund of $10,000 during her lifetime. Following her death in December, 1908, the other part of the contest which was settled today. The amount of the estate is not definitely known, but is thought to be about $500,000.

Fifteen hundred "suspense cabs," handoms and four-wheelers, have just been placed on the streets of London, and they are said already to have scored a great success. The cabs are a little flag with the anonymous "Suspense" (12 cents) not exceeding one mile. Hundreds of people are taking short rides in these cabs.

MYRTLE REED, AUTHORESS, HAS MODEL HUSBAND

Wins Coveted Honor at Wife's Own Show

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Until James Sydney McCullough gave it as his solemn opinion that old rose-radium silk was pink blueism he had a chance tonight to entrench himself in history as a qualifying element in Chicago's composite model husband.

The hour was 10:37 and the atmosphere quivered with the intensity of the contest.

COMPETITION IS KEEN.

Competition was keen among the nine candidates entered by their wives as paragons worthy of the marital blue ribbons. For hours the entrants had had shoes "sympathetically" buttoned dresses up the back; sewed buttons with a stop watch held over them, and tried their best fairly to ooze patience and amiability without seeming to try.

Not only that, but they had written descriptions of an elaborate gown, guessed at the price of a woman's hat, and had striven to prove their understanding of what it means to wear a long straight-front corset.

This last test was an extremely picturesque affair. Each candidate wore a piece of white tape sewed at top and bottom and extending from the neck to the waist of his vest in such a manner that the least lapse into spinal lassitude permitted the tape to "hang."

In a room so filled with cozy-corners and low seats as the McCulloughs' domestic, the resultant exhibition of the model husbands was a painful sight.

FORTITUDE WINS CONTEST.
Cheatey B. Perry displayed the greatest fortitude and won. But the most terrible situation, from the standpoint of the contestants, was the judging of their physical charms.

Just like other animals in the blue-ribbon shows where tankards is an essential, they were compelled to stand in a row and show their teeth. Then they had to stand and display their hands.

Then to sit and thrust out their feet to have the three judges—the only unmarried women present—pass upon which was the "prettiest." The last ordeal came at the ghastly hour of midnight. It was the selection by the three maiden ladies of the "prettiest man."

If they had done it in a less romantic and more matter-of-fact way it would not have been so bad. But for nine men, some of them quite conscious that their wives had made just a little bit of a mistake in putting them into the lists, to stand in a darkened room while twelve critical women, each bearing a lighted candle, marched slowly by in silence, peering into their faces, is about as severe a test as even a near-model husband could stand.

AUTHORESS HAS MODEL HUSBAND.

Mr. McCullough stood 't best, so it must be his many physiognomy that surmounts Chicago's picture of its prize husband.

Mr. McCullough had made a good showing in some of the other events, too, and he might have given more of his attributes to the composite paragon had it not been for that unfortunate fall-down on linoleum and radium silk.

Beginning with the head, however, and ending with the heart, here is a description of the blue-ribbon husband, if one could be found with all the prize-winning points assembled under one hat.

Height, 5 feet 10 inches; weight, 100 pounds; face, full enough to be devoid of wrinkles or hollows; nose, slightly Roman; mouth—oh, well, a handsome mouth; teeth, perfect, of course; eyes, black; hair, black and enough of it to comb nicely; and, don't forget this—no mustache.

SOME OF HIS FINE POINTS.

Capable of fastening twenty-five waist buttons (up the back) and fifty hooks (on the sides) in one minute and thirty-seven seconds without gritting his teeth once.

Able to sew a button on a piece of cloth in fifty-two seconds and bite out the thread.

Able to tie a woman's shoe lace with speed, grace and sympathy in twenty seconds.

Always good-natured before breakfast.

Never snores, is constantly gallant and never loses his temper, even when his wife loses hers.

Able to describe accurately a dress like this. Old rose radium silk, made princess, with panels of hand embroidery on net in black and white, sleeves, crossed, demi-train, French plaits between the panels, net yoke, cut with a Dutch neck, and a silver fan.

BOGG ACTUALLY DID IT.
It is hard to believe, but Harry B. Bogg actually did that. The gown was worn by the hostess and some idea of the way the men went at the task of writing descriptions of it may be gained from the paper turned in by Dr. Albert E. Palmer. It read thus: "This wonderful creation is a splendid example of the model's art. It is a Gothic architecture with ornate Corinthian columns. It beggars description. We failed to describe the doctor's heroic effort got him the consolation prize."

OTHER GOOD FEATURES.
George V. W. Ingham guessed that the hostess' $5.50 hat cost $3.20 and won; Arvid Van Vlietingen had the prettiest hair; Samuel V. Nostrom was the "best husband," chiefly because he was always good-natured before breakfast.

And the model's teeth and was the model tooth-sawer; Lewis B. Powell was the best scissor-tie, and Charles B. Perry took the "extraordinary" prize. One of Herbert W. Duncanson's qualifications as third best husband was this written in his wife's recommendation: "I admire his cute ways with other girls."

HOUSTON BANDS KEEP TAFT AWAKE

President's Sleep Disturbed by Din of Texas Musicians

POLITICS PREVENT SAVING SAYS CHIEF EXECUTIVE

Arduous Trip Nears End as He Leaves Texas Marshes

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 22.—After declaring in favor of Postal savings banks in an unequivocal speech at Beeville last night, President Taft arrived here this morning at 7 o'clock, coming in the wake of an injunction that he be not disturbed until 3 o'clock, so that his rest would not be broken. The Houston reception committee was chagrined but soon cheered up when the suggestion was made that the local band meet the Taft special at the depot and play until time for the committee to board the train.

DIN STARTS EARLY.

No sooner had Mr. Taft's car been shunted into place than the Houston brass band broke forth in "See the Conquering Hero Comes" and each player vied with his companion to make the loudest noise in honor of the nation's executive. On the second note Mr. Taft awoke with the sensation of an earthquake was tumbling down the entire town about his train. He tossed about for a time, awaiting for the din to subside until he could get another half hour's sleep.

The bandmaster, however, had provided enough material to keep his players going at full steam until 3:30 and at that hour the reception committee, some of them in pug hats and others in slouches, boarded the car to find the President up and fully dressed and in no wise soothed by the clamorous music.

ESCORTED TO HOTEL.
The President was escorted from his car to the Elce Hotel. A military salute boomed out its greetings as the executive appeared. After breakfast followed the usual review of school children who sang and waved flags and then a brief speech in which Mr. Taft touched on issues pertaining to Texas on which he had spoken in various other southwestern towns. Then came a motor ride about the city while the principal points of interest were shown. After a three hour stay in Houston Mr. Taft left for Dallas, where he will spend tonight. After leaving Dallas, the President will strike out on his 24 hour run for St. Louis. With the Texas engagements behind him, Mr. Taft feels that his long trip is nearing its end.

EXPLAINS POVERTY.

Mr. Taft was talking about the postal savings bank system, advocating it and making plain that he was for it strong when some one in the audience shouted: "Where are you putting your money, Bill?"

"When you have been in politics as long as I have," he replied to the President, "you will find that there is mighty little money to be saved."

Heart of Mrs. Leeds Is Still Untenanted

PARIS, Oct. 22.—Mrs. William E. Leeds, whose wealth and beauty have compelled the homage of two capitals, has come back from London to remain in Paris until November 3, when she is to sail for New York. She wishes to know that she is not engaged and does not intend to be.

"I cannot imagine how the stories about me started," she said. "The last one, that I refused Prince Joachim Murat, is the silliest of all. I do not even know Prince Murat, have never seen him. Prince Murat was a member of a yachting party of which I also was a member at the Cowes regatta. That may have led someone to start the story. But Prince Murat is a grandfather and has a wife living. Prince Murat, I understand, is 22—my little boy is 7. That ought to be reason enough for anyone with ordinary sense to discredit a story associating him with me."

YUBA COUNTY STARTS PRISON CHAIN GANG
MARYSVILLE, Oct. 22.—Twenty-eight county prisoners deemed in prison garb, were put to work yesterday on the county roads for the first time in the history of Yuba county. Several months ago the Board of Supervisors passed a resolution establishing a county chain gang, but the striped uniforms and leg-irons did not arrive until recently, and consequently the prisoners could not be taken out of the gang and it is expected that the working of the prisoners will have the effect of reducing the number of free county boarders.

Wife of the Steel Trust President Will Shortly Occupy Warwick Castle

LONDON, Oct. 22.—It was reported here today that William Ellis Coe, wife of the President of the United Steel Corporation, will soon become the occupant of the Warwick castle. It was the time that the Countess Warwick was anxious that Mrs. Coe, with whom she is very friendly, should possess the castle at a nominal rental—say $5000 a year.

Judge Kohlsaat Is Talked Of as Being in Line To Succeed Crane to the Court of Cathay

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—There was a persistent rumor today at the state department that Judge Kohlsaat of Chicago was being considered favorably for the post of minister to China.

Other Secretary Knox of the State Department nor Assistant Secretary of State Huntington Wilson is in Washington.

The successor of Mr. Crane has become an important consideration for the State Department. Senator La Follette has publicly stated that he proposes to ventilate the downfall of Mr. Crane in the Senate and to show that it was due to Wall Street, meaning, of course, the Morgan interests.

ELECTRICITY WILL BE USED IN CURE OF TUBERCULOSIS

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—A clinic for the cure of tuberculosis, and high "frequency" is to be opened within a few days at the throat and lung hospital in East Twenty-seventh street. It is the work of Dr. Frederick de Kraf of No. 148 West Seventeenth street, who will be in charge of it. It may result in revolutionizing treatment for tuberculosis, if not establish a positive cure for it.

It is largely to Dr. de Kraf's success in the treatment of consumption with what is known as the Oudin electric current that the establishing of the clinic is due. He is among the foremost of medical men who have been experimenting with this treatment and declared to a reporter that he had effected scores of cures of consumptives during the last five years.

"I have not invented a cure for consumption," said Dr. de Kraf, "but I have improved the methods of application of the electric current of high potentiality and frequency and with others have established that consumptives, even when in advanced stages of the disease, can be cured by electricity."

"There are possibilities in the use of the Oudin, D'Arsonval and Tesla currents that may stir the world. Just what these possibilities are I do not care to say at present, but they will be developed at the new clinic, where we will have an opportunity of observing thousands of cases instead of scores or hundreds."

In explaining the effects of these currents, Dr. de Kraf said: "The Oudin current produces a heating of the blood and induces currents in the system which have the tendency to check toxins and prove a former auto-inoculation. The Oudin current, when properly used, destroys the microbe-organisms which produce disease."

Dr. Kraf is a member of many of the National Medical Societies, and the results of his experiments are already generally known to the medical fraternity.

ITALY RECEIVES CZAR NICHOLAS CORDIALLY

People Manifest Gratitude for Aid Russia Gave to Earthquake Sufferers

NO UNTOWARD INCIDENT
MARS TRIUMPHAL ENTRY

As Royal Train Enters Racogni Women Pelt It With Bouquets of Flowers

RACOGNI, Italy, Oct. 2.—Nicholas, emperor of all the Russias, made a triumphal entry into Italy today. Whatever may have stirred beneath the surface, the outward manifestation was a cordial and popular welcome to the head of a friendly state.

Threatened demonstrations had been sternly suppressed. The day's rejoicing was spontaneous and genuine even the mayor of Rome having been sent by a radical and socialist board of aldermen to participate in the imperial reception. Broadly reviewed the much-discussed and long-awaited meeting between Emperor Nicholas and King Victor Emmanuel opened most auspiciously.

ANIMATED STREET SCENES.
From early dawn the scene in this city was animated as crowds gathered in the streets. The strict measures to preserve order adopted by the police and military did not serve to dampen the ardor of the populace. The whole city had been decorated with flags and hunting, while the householders along the route to the palace had spread carpets and filled their windows with bouquets and bright colored streamers. Triumphant arches stretched across the path traversed by his Majesty.

This morning the mayor posted a manifesto exhorting the citizens to give the emperor a greeting that would show their appreciation of a great event and express Italy's gratitude for the aid and the Russian sailors gave at the time of the earthquake in Southern Italy.

NICHOLAS IN GOOD HUMOR.
Emperor Nicholas appeared in excellent health and the best of humor as he stepped from the train, which came into the station five minutes ahead of schedule. His coach had been decorated with the Italian and Russian colors. King Victor Emmanuel stepped toward the imperial carriage as the emperor emerged and to the platform. The sovereigns embraced and kissed each other on both cheeks.

At the moment the Italian troops presented arms, cannon belched forth a salute, the bands played and the crowd cheered. Accompanied by the King, the Emperor reviewed a company of infantry inside the station. Here the ministers and other government dignitaries were presented to His Majesty, following which ceremony the sovereigns emerged from the station and entered a carriage. As the people outside caught sight of the King and his imperial guest the cheering was renewed and continued as the two monarchs drove away.

MET ON FRONTIER.
On the Italian frontier the Emperor was met by a special commission of generals sent by King Victor Emmanuel and by Adjutant General Prince Dolgorouki, Russian ambassador to Italy, and the staff of the Russian embassy. At the appearance of the emperor's train, the troops, drawn up beside the track, presented arms and their bands played the Russian national anthem. Throughout the Mont Cenis Railway line the progress of the emperor had the character of a triumphal march.

The troops prevented crowds from the villages that line the route from approaching the railroad. This restriction, however, served only to stimulate the curiosity of the people who gathered at the rear of the soldiers climbed into trees and upon the cliffs whenever a view of the passing train was to be had, and as the train passed, waved their hats and handkerchiefs, shouting "Long live Russia" and "Long live the Emperor." Women threw bouquets of flowers over the heads of the soldiers and against the train as it swept past.

At the station Emperor Nicholas was met by King Victor Emmanuel, Premier Giolitti, Foreign Minister Tittoni, Major Nathan of Rome, members of the court staff officers and dignitaries. These had driven to the station in brightly decorated carriages without riders and escorted by couriers. King Victor Emmanuel wore the full uniform of a general with the collar of the Order of the Annunziata.

French Method of Developing the Bust

Mme. DuBarrie Explains How the Bust May Be Developed 2 to 8 Inches in 30 Days.

"I am explaining for the first time to the ladies of America," Mrs. DuBarrie said, "the French method of developing the bust. It is the best I have ever known. The results appear much more quickly, the breasts become more firm, plump and symmetrical, the method is simple, the effects more lasting, and altogether beyond comparison with the results produced here."

"You know the French people have the development of the bust and form down to a fine point."

"By this French method, the breasts may be developed from 2 to 8 inches in 30 days. This applies to women of all ages, from young girls to old matrons, whether the bust is absolutely undeveloped at all or has grown a little flabby, and hangs, no matter how small."

"It is beauty of form that attracts much more than the features. You will always find it so with the sexes."

"I will be only too glad to tell any woman who is interested what this simple French method is, if she will enclose a 2-cent stamp to pay for the postage. I will send an illustrated booklet in a plain sealed wrapper that will explain it all."

"We wish to send lady readers that they will find it to be a French method for particulars of this remarkable French method, enclose 2 cents in stamps for the illustrated booklet and address it to Mme. DuBarrie, Suite 859 Quinlan Building, Chicago, Ill."

FORMER POLITICIAN LANDS IN PRISON

Clarence D. Van Duser Held in Pittsburg as a Suspicious
Character

PITTSBURG, Oct. 23.—Clarence D. Van Duser, former Congressman from Nevada, is a prisoner in central police station on a charge of being a suspicious person. While in Pittsburg three years ago he stopped at the Fort Pitt hotel, and, it is alleged by the police, he forgot to settle a bill of $35.

Van Duser came to this city last night and registered at the Colonial under the name of P. H. Harris of Chicago. He was recognized as the man who had been at the Fort Pitt hotel three years ago, when he sold mining stocks to many Pittsburgers and throughout Western Pennsylvania, which, it is said, turned out to be worthless. Many ministers and members of local churches were among the buyers and some of them visited central station this morning to rectify their troubles to the police.

ARREST IS DRAMATIC

The arrest of Van Duser was somewhat dramatic. Detective Lally went to Van Duser's room at the Colonial and knocked. When the occupant opened the door, Detective Lally said:

"Mr. Van Duser, I believe."

"No, sir. My name is not Van Duser. You will find my signature on the register downstairs," was the response.

The detective went downstairs and took a seat in the lobby. In a short while Van Duser came down. When he reached the street he broke into a quick walk—almost a run—and was two blocks away when arrested.

WAS ONCE A CONGRESSMAN.
Van Duser attracted prominence in the West and was a power in political circles in the Pacific States. He was speaker of the House in the Nevada Legislature in 1900 and was twice elected to Congress on the Democratic ticket, representing the state at large. He is editor of a Western mining journal and president of the Van Duser Tonopah Extension Company.

PRIEST TO RESCUE.
Late tonight the Rev. Jan Spol Rykaczewski, of Braddock, has come to the rescue of former Congressman C. D. Van Duser of Nevada and paid the Fort Pitt hotel bill of $37.25, also a bill of $50 owed by Van Duser to the hotel owner, both of which bills have been owing since Van Duser was selling mining stock in this city three years ago. The priest, it is understood, is a large holder of the mining stock and expresses confidence in Van Duser.

SEATTLE TO HAVE RAILROAD DEPOT

Harriman Lines to Spend Half a Million in Great Structure

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—By January, 1911 Seattle will have another fine passenger station, the terminus of the Harriman lines, whose entrance to the city is by the Oregon and Washington Railroad. The contract for the erection of the structure, which will cost approximately $500,000, has been awarded to the Thompson-Starrett Company of this city. Their bid was approximately $450,000.

The building will be constructed of reinforced concrete and will be a large semi-circular arched ceiling over the general waiting room (the exterior walls will be of dark red brick with trimmings of white artificial stone). A separate heating plant will be installed in another part of the yard. Plans for the building were prepared by H. J. Patterson of San Francisco, architect for the Harriman lines.

A FAT WOMAN HATES SOCIETY

Fat people have to get into clothes that are designed for people of normal physique. The men wear dress suits and all look like comic pictures. The women wear low necked dresses to their evident humiliation. This is why it is so often said that a fat woman hates society. Fat is as much the mark of poor health as anything else. The thing that makes fat should be making good blood, nerves and the secret is that the digestive machinery is out of gear. The fumes make fat in too large quantities.

This fat impedes circulation, cramps the heart, suppresses the liver, crowds the lungs and interferes with the stomach. Marmola Tablets are harmless. They are taken after each meal. They help digest that meal as nature intended it should be digested. They remove the fat already made at the rate of from 12 to 15 ounces a day and they leave no bad effects on the system. They are sold in every drug store.

Do not ease to call upon your druggist. Send 50 cents to the Marmola Company, Detroit, Mich., and they will send you a large, full size case by return mail in plain package postage paid.

GERMANY HAS COLOR PROBLEM

Silly Girls Write Love Letters to Colored Heathen in Dark Africa

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—Germany has developed a color line problem along with its new African empire. An official warning has been issued in the government newspaper against the indiscreet growth of a new craze among German girls for corresponding with young negroes in the colonies.

The evil was first pointed out a few months ago by missionaries in Africa, who discovered that the interchange of love letters between native youths and young German girls was a common occurrence.

This undesirable correspondence seems to have originated with educated negroes who visited Germany, where they formed attachments to silly, romantic white girls and kept up correspondence when they returned home. Then a girl would mention in a letter to her dusky swain that she had a friend who would like to correspond with an other young colored gentleman, so the thing grew, snow-ball fashion.

Not only school girls, but young business women and even students indulged in this undesirable practice, and in most cases the initiative came from the girl's side.

The semi-official warning, which has been reproduced by the entire German press, says:

"Frequent delight in the romantic exchange of letters with a negro, and possibly with a black prince, seems to have been the motive. It is unfortunately clear from the contents of the letters in question that the girls are in the hands of the epistles, had to a deplorable degree lost the sense of their own position."

"The sending of photographs of the letter-writers is nothing unusual. Of course, the senders never thought that their photographs would be hung up by negroes in their dwellings, along with all sorts of other pictures, and that it produces a false impression on the white observer when he sees the portrait of a German girl, evidently belonging to the better classes, in intimate companionship with a picture of a 'black beauty' of unknown origin."

"Consequently, it is not to be wondered at if it is good form among the colored male youth of some colonies to have a 'lady friend' in Germany."

THREE ARRESTED AS WELLS FARGO ROBBERS

BALTIMORE, Oct. 23.—Three men are under arrest here in connection with the robbery of $1682 from the Wells Fargo Express office in Chicago on August 14, last. They save the names of George J. Graham of Denver, Elmer Lewis and Al Lawrey of Washington.

STABLE PERMITS CAUSE TROUBLE

Supervisors and Board of Health Deal With Very Weighty Problem

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—Who shall assume charge of the duty of considering and deciding on applications for stable permits promises to prove an interesting question for decision at an early date. At present it is part of the province of the hospital and health committee of the Board of Supervisors, the chairman being Supervisor Henry Fayot. He is strongly of the opinion, however, that it belongs somewhere else and has already made futile attempts to have it transferred either to the Board of Health or elsewhere.

"The duty of our committee," said Chairman Fayot yesterday, "is to look after hospital and public health matters, and the stable problem is only collaterally connected, so to speak, with that duty. In effect, however, it takes up far the greater part of our time and leaves us with insufficient opportunity to attend to problems more correctly belonging to us. It is contended that the Board of Health would be too severe on the stablemen in its desire to enforce strict sanitary regulations, and perhaps that is something in that. Just the same, this stable matter should belong somewhere else than with us."

The problem is to be brought before the Board of Supervisors at a whole meeting, and it is probable that a special committee on stables may be created to handle the matter.

Portola Committee Were Real Workers, as the Result Shows

AN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—By the time this is read our big carnival will be over. The time for congratulations has come—and they will come thick and fast.

The men who have been most responsible for the success of the great show have not pushed themselves to the front. They haven't sought honors or applause, and perhaps that is one reason why the entire affair was so successful. That executive committee worked instead of posing and grafting.

The idea of the great carnival originated in the active mind of Dent H. Robert, publisher of the Examiner and Hearst's personal representative on the coast. Robert is a big bundle of energy, and he drew around him other energetic personalities. He had had experience with the Veiled Prophet carnivals of St. Louis, and consequently knew how to begin.

When a committee had been brought together it was agreed at the start that there must be no self-seeking and no self-advertising. The newspaper managers and proprietors agreed that there should be no scooping or attempts at advantage so far as the preparations for the carnival were concerned. No one was to advertise goods at the expense of the carnival spirit. Then the committeemen set about getting and suggesting ideas—and they came thick and fast.

One day Robert came in with the idea of securing a big naval pageant, and the idea was taken up with a whoop. And here stepped in luck. Just at that time Charles C. Moore, who is about the biggest concentration of potential energy in all San Francisco, was on his way to Europe and our Eastern States on a vacation. He consented to act as special envoy of the committee, and he was just the man for the job. Of course, it piled a lot of work on him, but it gave him notice to court and cabinets he could not otherwise have entered, and he made the most of his opportunities.

Committeemen Were All Hustlers

Well, men like Marshall Hale, Charlie De Young, Milton E. Berg, Clay, McCarthy, Peixotto, Carroll and the others put in more time on the carnival than they gave to their own business. They originated ideas and put them into details. The Mayor stood in nobly all along the line.

But most of all, things depended on getting the funds. That was a searching task. People were not ready for the carnival idea. They were skeptical. The knockers were abundant, as usual. It was hard to raise funds. But that committee got a couple of wonders in Louis Sloss and Frank B. Anderson, and they made men come up who hadn't a notion of contributing a penny, and who squeaked what they did contribute. Next year the raising of the money will be easy enough. The hotels, cafes, florists, restaurants and transportation companies could well afford to put up all the necessary funds as a sound business venture. If next year's show is to be the same sort of unqualified success, however, it must be run on the same high-minded lines.

Miss Bogue an Ideal Queen

Fortune favors the brave. The gods fight on the side with the most cannon. The winds and the waves favor the most skillful managers. And so it was that luck was with that committee—the luck of selecting the right people for the right places.

In the matter of the selection of a Queen, society was inclined to hold aloof. The young women who submitted photographs for the contest did not lack beauty, but they were devoid of personality. Suddenly in came the photograph of Miss Virgilia Bogue.

Now, it would be absurd to say that Miss Bogue is the most beautiful woman in San Francisco or California. But she has great facial beauty and, added to it, a figure that is queenlike and a poise exactly fitted to the role. Beyond that, she has an education unusual in a woman—or in a man, for that matter—and so was exceptionally fitted to greet and meet the foreign representatives. She sits a horse like a queen of the Amazons, too, and that counts for much in the eyes of the people.

In addition, Miss Bogue has completely won the hearts of those who have had to work with her in the carnival. She is a programmer of programmers. When she agreed to be ready for a function at a certain time, she never was so much as a minute late. If she agreed that some one committeeman was to escort her—or some group of committeemen—she waited for that man or that group. When agreeing to do anything in a defined way, she did it in just that way. As a consequence she lightened the burdens of her fellow workers and won all their hearts by her graciousness, just as she won the hearts of all the people

THE KNAVE

Don Nicholas and Queen Virgilia Were the Ideal Rulers of Carnival

ple by her beauty and natural queenliness. As a consequence, many have said she should always be queen of the fiesta.

Don Nicholas as Don Gaspar a Jewel

Then came the selection of Don Gaspar. A tangle seemed likely over that, because one man suggested would be too close to the "Prosecution," another too close to the "Defense." One was too fat; another too lean. One or two who might have been selected would not take the place. The brow of the committee got wrinkles in it, but the Don Gaspar problem was unsolved.

Then Mrs. W. E. Dargie solved that riddle in an instant. She suggested Don Nicholas Covarrubias of Santa Maria as a typical caballero—a man uniting all the courtliness of the old Californians with the poise and worldly wisdom of the new generation. So Edgar Peixotto was sent to interview the courtly old Don and to get an idea of how much money he would require for his expenses.

"Why, I need no money," was his quick response. "I will meet all my own expenses. Just give me a guard of honor to keep me from kissing all the pretty girls," laughed the gallant Don Nicholas, as he accepted the honor.

Well, everybody now knows how fortunate was the suggestion and selection of Don Nicholas as Don Gaspar. He was the ideal conquistador, looking and acting the role until he filled every eye with admiration. He has a kingly grace of salutation that no darsarte school ever could impart—a native dignity that makes him, like Lear, "every inch a king."

Nicholas Covarrubias has been a good deal of a figure in California in his day. He was one of the California electors when Grover Cleveland was elected President of the United States, and his fellows selected him to carry the State's vote to Washington. In his open-hearted, free-handed way he lavished his fortune right and left and made California hospitality known wherever he went. As one writer put it:

"He nearly bankrupted himself, and the Democratic State Central Committee didn't recover from the financial shock until George Hearst ran for Senator."

Cleveland named Don Nicholas United States Marshal for the Southern district of California, and he filled the place with honor and distinction. In all the old-time fiestas at Los Angeles he was the king, so his joyous ease in the role on this occasion came from plenty of practice in the past, as well as from a natural adaptability to such a position.

In any event, the Queen and Don Gaspar were unqualified successes and contributed much to the general joy of the occasion. The courtly pictures they made in the streets, at balls and receptions will long linger in the memory.

Boosting Wares Not Successful

It hasn't been a good season for people who tried to thrust their private interests ahead of the general pleasing. The men who tried to advertise their wares in Thursday's big parade hurt instead of helped their trade. A beer man who scared Nob Hill with a great electric sign has stirred up a host of people who have pledged themselves not to drink that beer, and one man even went so far as to propose his expulsion from one of his clubs for conduct unbecoming a gentleman.

Not All of the Politicians Sagacious

The tool Democrats who insisted on holding political meetings during the joy time lost votes by their folly. The Labor Unionites did no better. It was a stroke of genius on the part of the Republican management to call off all their meetings until carnival week was well over. Self-seeking this week has been bad business.

Johnny Doyle, Sid Hart and Rudie Fischbeck tried to get up a private masquerade at Dreamland Rink on Thursday night—the night of the big public masquerade. As a consequence they didn't have a corporal's guard in attendance and pocketed quite a considerable loss. That spirit of doing nothing except for the public good that the committee set out in the first instance permeated the entire city, and in the future it will be a hardy or foolish chap who will try to graft anything out of the city's big time of laughter.

The Fly in the Colonel's Ointment

The joke is on Colonel Boniface Kirkpatrick of the Fairmont hotel. As co-hired man with James Woods of the St. Francis, the pair of them manage the two great hostleries of the San Francisco hotel trust, and naturally there is some rivalry between them in the matter of making the greater returns to the stockholders. Colonel Kirkpatrick has the advantage in respect of age and experience, while Woods has the advantage of youth and what seems like good luck, as the following facts will show:

Months ago the women of the Order of the Eastern Star began to make preparations for a convention in this city to commence on October 17th. They sent a committee to Colonel Kirkpatrick to make arrangements for hotel accommodations. At that time the hotel business was dull and the Fairmont was struggling along with hardly enough passengers to keep up appearances. To Colonel Kirkpatrick the Eastern Star was as welcome as the flowers in spring. He closed a contract with the committee by which the women were to have a large block of rooms all during their convention, with three meals a day, at the low rate of $4 per diem.

Then was discovered the Portola carnival and fixed the initial performance for October 19th. Things began to boom, and as October approached there was an unprecedented demand for the best of hotel rooms at any old price. Colonel Kirkpatrick had seen busy times in his line, but nothing like this. It seemed to him that all the world was on the move and wanted to stop at the Fairmont hotel. But there was that reservation for the Eastern Star at $4 a day. The Colonel tried to look pleasant, but he was once seen kicking a dog clear down the back stairs and his appetite dwindled to a few sips of warm milk diluted with water. Even the walls of the What Cheer House were bulging with guests loaded with money to burn, while the rooms of the Fairmont were filling up with the staid, conservative members of the Eastern Star at $4 a day. Down at the St. Francis an extra corps of cashiers was required to handle the receipts, while up at the Fairmont the Eastern Star had possession at $4 a day on the American plan, smoking no cigars, fighting no booze, not invading the solemn silence of the grill room between regular meals, and regularly going to bed at 10 o'clock with a request for a pitcher of ice water and an extra blanket.

The report that Colonel Kirkpatrick has named a new horse Portola is not true.

The Discovery of More Bret Harte

A man in Brooklyn, N. Y., has performed an unusual, perhaps a unique, literary feat, and bibliophiles who thought they possessed the complete writings of Bret Harte will have to take a new account of library stock. Harte wrote two lectures—one on "The Argonauts of '49," the other on "American Humor." The first was delivered twelve or fifteen times in this country during the years 1872-3 and twice in London about ten years later. The latter was delivered several times in Eastern cities in 1874-5. Harte was not a big success as a lecturer even in the days when the lyceum was popular, and his two lectures were not preserved by him nor ever printed in their entirety. The newspapers, however, gave considerable space to the event whenever Harte appeared on the platform, and they published such fragments and quotations from his words as impressed or suited the whim of the reporters. Now this Brooklyn man conceived the idea of digging up all these newspaper accounts and from them reconstructing the two lectures, something as a professor of paleontology reconstructs a pterodactyl from the scraps of bones he finds in the rocks; but the paleontological sharp is frequently suspected of drawing largely upon imagination when he builds up an animal of the paleozoic age, while the Brooklyn man thinks he has discovered enough direct quotations in the dusty files to reproduce the text of Harte's two lectures exactly as they were delivered. The amount of labor and research involved in this undertaking would have discouraged anyone but an enthusiast, but the result has added a valuable item to the bibliography of one of the three foremost Californian writers. The Brooklyn man has published these rehabilitated lectures in book form, together with three little known fables that Harte wrote for a Chicago hospital fund, and that otherwise might have been lost. The little book is a handsome piece of typography and is illustrated by Merle Johnson, a New York artist, who began his career in this city. It is, however, limited to one hundred copies, so that this resurrected writing will not be accessible to many of the numerous lovers of Harte's work.

How Phelan Fixed Santos Dumont

Recent references to the Spencer F. Eddys, in relation to their change of intention to spend the winter season in California, has called attention afresh to the rumor that came from Paris some time since that Mrs. Eddy, then the beautiful Lurline Spreckels, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Spreckels, was to marry Santos Dumont, who for a time attracted world-wide attention as a daring aviator.

In one bundle of gossip from the gay French capital came the story of the engagement of Lurline Spreckels and Santos Dumont. In a subsequent package of Parisian social chatter came a tale of why that engagement, or a relation between the fair American and the famous Frenchman, expected to culminate in a betrothal, came to a sudden ending.

The story runs that James D. Phelan, our own unesteemed Jimmy, while on a visit to Paris became quite chummy with Dumont. One day the pair were out for a lark, which included sightseeing and renewing acquaintance with the gayer life of the always gay French capital. To give zest to this joy ride Santos and James had as their companions two French ladies sometimes called peasant girls.

As the revel progressed, so the Paris correspondent relates, it was proposed that the party have their pictures taken in a group as a souvenir or memento of the pleasurable occasion. Here it was that Phelan gave evidence of those foxy qualities that have endeared him to those who have had reason to know him as a gentleman of peculiar chivalrous propensities. As the photographer was about to "snap" the picture Jimmie left the automobile so that but three—Santos Dumont and the two ladies—remained to form the group that was to be a memento of the escapade.

But Phelan did not confine the proofs that he is certainly a chevalier on whose escutcheon the coyote as well as the fabled reynard might well be quartered. The Parisian budget relates that James Duval Phelan showed a picture of the group to Miss Lurline Spreckels, and his remarkable code of chivalry overruled his fairly relating the circumstances under which a photograph of Dumont and two cocottes had been taken in group.

Even the possibility of an engagement between Santos Dumont and the beautiful Miss Spreckels became a thing of the past from the moment the Honorable Sir Knight Phelan submitted the picture to the gaze of the lady.

The animus of this act, repugnant to all sense of manhood and decency, is said to have been that Phelan himself aspired to the hand of Miss Spreckels, and the nature of the creature did the rest.

Thursday's Parade

The Portola parade last Thursday reminded one of Mark Twain's description of Queen Victoria's great jubilee procession that marched through the streets of London in 1897. "I never saw as many soldiers before in my life except in a theater," he wrote. The joke was intended for American consumption and made a hit in this country. How it fared in England may only be surmised from what happened when it tried to penetrate the armor of a certain San Francisco lawyer who has long practiced his profession here and has an office in the Mills building, but was born and educated in England. He wrestled with it a long time, and finally, losing all patience, burst out with indignation: "Sir, I do not see any humor in that. Why, I have seen, in one of the largest theaters in America, at a great production of a Shakespearean play, with Edwin Booth as the star—I have seen, I say, no more than thirty men marching round and round across the stage from behind the scenes and in front again, doing duty for a whole army! Now, where is the joke?"

Union Labor After Bell

Former Congressman, and one time candidate for Governor, with indications that he will again seek that office, Theodore A. Bell has got himself in a tangle with union labor in San Francisco. Three years ago labor supported Bell for Governor, but now that he has come out in opposition to P. H. McCarthy for Mayor and assails that candidate in nightly speeches, the labor leaders are responding in bitter denunciations of Bell.

At a recent political meeting of the Union Labor party, William R. Hegerty, secretary of the county committee of that organization, reviewed the support he and McCarthy had given Bell in the latter's fight for Governor, both having gone to the State convention in his behalf. He said that he knew of no reason why Bell should turn upon his former union labor friends, except that he had made a deal with Gavin McNab for a second gubernatorial nomination. Hegerty, apparently speaking with authority, said that if it came to a question between Gillett and Bell again, the union labor forces would throw their weight to Gillett both for the nomination and election.

Gumshoe Burns Afraid of His English

"Is Gumshoe Burns," the detective and other things, "afraid of his own English?" is a question that is now being frequently asked. To Burns has been assigned the duty of addressing the woman's clubs of this city in behalf of Francis J. Heney's candidacy for District Attorney. Miss Henrietta Harper, a public stenographer, has a contract to take verbatim the thoughts that may flow from the Burns mind when addressing the ladies on civic morality as viewed by him, but the gumshoe man will not permit the stenographer to note for the purpose of placing in imperishable type the revelations of his great intellect.

Miss Harper declares that Burns is acting in restraint of trade and is violating the Federal laws in that relation. She succeeded in securing Burns' fulminations at one woman's meeting, but after that the gumshoe man simply refused to talk until the stenographer left the clubroom. Miss Harper appealed to Francis J. Heney for aid in her dilemma. She could make good money by reporting the Burns scintillating words and did not like the financial loss incurred by Burns' modesty. Burns' speeches are gems and were worth to the stenographer so much per gem. But Heney said that he had absolutely no control of his chief gumshoe man's eloquence and could not assist the stenographer.

It is suspected that Burns is using his rhetorical periods as a blind to do a little gumshoe work in ascertaining how the husbands and other male relatives of the women stand on the graft prosecution in order that the information may be used in the securing of trial juries.

When recently one of Miss Harper's employes was ejected from a hall for attempting to take in short-hand one of Heney's harangues the woman sent a bill for $52, the amount the work was worth to her under a contract she had with several persons who would like to read the words of the special prosecutor as they were uttered, but as yet no check has been sent to her through the mail.

Detectives From East

Two Eastern detectives have been in the city for several weeks trying to get some facts to be used in the highly sensational and nasty Hartje domestic quarrel in Pittsburg. As far as can be ascertained, the two sleuths are seeking to find out if Augustus Hartje, the husband, brought any woman to this city when he was here about two years ago or associated with any women while here. It is alleged the detectives have partially found out what they came for and that the information will be used in the forthcoming divorce trial of the wife against the husband. Hartje is a Pittsburg millionaire, who recently lost a divorce suit against his wife after making some most outrageous charges against her. One of the witnesses against her, a negro coachman in the employ of the family, is now serving a seven-year term for perjury. It is said the wife expects from the detectives' reports to prove her husband's improper relations with at least three women. One of the latter is said to have been here with him at a prominent hotel for several weeks. Under court orders the husband is now paying his wife $1000 a month.

Tom Hickey's Doughnuts

Did you ever hear of Tom Hickey's doughnuts? Tom, he of much embonpoint, is not only chairman of the local Democratic County Committee, but also attorney for Public Administrator M. J. "Billy" Hynes. The latter is seeking re-election on the Democratic ticket. If he wins Tom is to continue drawing fat fees from the office. P. J. Kelleher, the Union Labor candidate against Hynes, for some reason does not like Hickey and alludes to his fees from the Public Administrator's office as "doughnuts." He is going around telling his friends that he will not have nervous prostration if not elected if "I can only in some way cut off Hickey's supply of doughnuts."

New Democratic Newspaper

I hear that former Congressman Caminetti, Arthur Dunn and their associates in the scheme for a one-cent daily morning Democratic newspaper in San Francisco at the beginning of next year have enlisted the interest and financial support of United States Senator F. G. Newlands of Nevada. To what extent the Senator will open his plethoric purse to help along the new paper is not stated and it would be useless to make a guess. Newlands, in the advancement of his political ambition, has always been liberal with his money. It is said by some of Newlands' friends that in his ambitions political he is now looking higher than the Nevada toga. However, he does not want to discard the latter without the certainty of something better. His eyes are turned towards the next presidential election, and he hopes to have the Democrats in national convention give him either the presidential or vice-presidential nomination. The Federal irrigation law is named after him and he has a strong following with both the large western mining interests and with many influential eastern people who have large western investments. As the story runs, he is to help support the new paper by reason of the fact that it will exploit favorably his record as a national legislator and keep him before the public as a man deserving of great recognition by the Democrats in the presidential campaign of 1912. A big, modern press for the new paper has already been ordered in the east. A location on Market street is now being sought for the paper.

Helped by Hearst

William Randolph Hearst's nomination as a mayoralty candidate in New York a few days ago recalls an episode of his last fight for Mayor of that city which shows the heart and character of the man. One of his most enthusiastic supporters against Tammany and McClellan was a Russian Jew. He was a hackman and president of a Hackman's Union. On the day of the election at his polling place the Tammany coterie slugged and beat him unmercifully. The man, whose name was Samuel Meyer, lingered long at a hospital between life and death. Mr. Hearst paid all his expenses and those of his wife while sick. On recovering Tammany cancelled his license as a hackman. He had to look elsewhere for work. Mr. Hearst sent him and his wife to this city. They went to live on Howard street, near Fourth, and were there about two weeks when the great disaster of April 18, 1906, occurred. Mr. Hearst arrived here a few days later. Man and wife readily got an audience with him. They asked him to help them return to New York, as they had lost their all in the fire. The newspaper proprietor did more than they requested. He sent them back on first-class tickets, with a Pullman section and enough gold to pay for their meals on a trip much longer than the time required for them to reach New York. And how man and wife thanked the newspaper owner when they left his office to start back East.

Money From Alaska

Two men named Evans and Conway, with offices in the Metropolis Savings and Trust Bank at Market and New Montgomery streets, are here, from Juneau to invest their money in San Francisco income-paying property. Both men have been successful in gold, copper and coal mines in Southeastern Alaska and are credited with having $750,000 available for investment here. They plan to purchase a site and erect on it a structure to be called the Juneau building. Negotiations with that object in view are now pending. According to these men, Southeastern Alaska alone has millions in undeveloped copper, gold and coal, and J. Pierpont Morgan and the Guggenheims are spending several million dollars in developing their various properties in the Copper river section and in building a railroad from tidewater to their mines. A great trade between Alaska and San Francisco could readily be built up, say these men, if the merchants of this city go after it in the right spirit. In speaking of the so-called "Seward's folly," the paying to Russia by Secretary Seward in the sixties the sum of $7,500,000 for Alaska, they point out that fully $300,000,000 has been taken out of the territory since then, including seal furs.

Prayer on Grain of Wheat

A grain of wheat on which is written the Lord's prayer is a rare treasure possessed by Chester S. Smith of this city. Mr. Smith, who is well known in business and Republican political circles and who is the son-in-law of General N. P. Chipman of the State Appellate Court at Sacramento, received this unique thing from his father some years ago in Philadelphia. A Russian workman in the employ of Mr. Smith's father did the work. The letters are written with pen and ink and, while not decipherable with the naked eye, are readily legible with a microscope. Later on the Russian decorated another wheat grain in a similar manner and it is in the possession of a relative of Mr. Smith. In each case it took the man about a week to finish the lettering. In doing so he had to use an optician's microscope. The delicacy of touch and the painstaking care of such work can easily be imagined. Mr. Smith has been offered all sorts of inducements to part with his odd treasure, but has refused them all. He considers it a family heirloom and as such zealously guards it from possible loss or damage. The Russian workman gave the two grains of wheat thus lettered to Mr. Smith's father as gifts out of gratitude for what he had done for him.

Story About Malcolm Garnett

In the so-called Southern social set here they are telling a story about Malcolm Garnett, Harvard graduate, popular man about town and brother of Porter Garnett, the historian, of much that is best and artistic in the career of the Bohemian Club. Not so long ago "Mal," as his intimates call him, went as purser on a steamer which sailed for the South Seas. Just the opposite of Garnett was the captain, for the latter was robust of physique and rough and blustering in manner and talk, a regular seadog of the Jack London novel sort. Purser and captain did not get along well together, but Garnett made many sacrifices of his feelings in an effort to preserve the amenities. Things went from bad to worse between the two steamer officers. Finally five days out on the return trip at the breakfast hour, the captain was rougher than usual in his language. Garnett, refusing to endure the abuse any longer, turned on his superior officer and shouted: "Sir, your idiosyncrasies are most appalling to me."

"Why didn't you apologize before?" was the return shout of the captain. "Let's shake hands."

The two men got along swimmingly for the remainder of the voyage.

Newspaper Men's Stories

The seven or eight talented newspaper correspondents with the Taft special train left behind them here in press and hotel circles some choice stories. Here is one: Half a dozen men were at a swell bar taking an appetizer before dinner when one of them remarked to the man at his elbow: "I saw Charley in here last evening. Do you know, he's got a great deal of moral courage?"

"How's that?" eagerly asked his listener. "Well, there were a dozen of us here drinking and Charley and I had just been introduced to the four in the crowd we did not know. Well, you know, how a crowd of men under such circumstances get to talking and telling stories. Finally one of the four started to tell a story and got pretty well along with his tale, when he stopped with the usual, old question: 'Have you ever heard this before?' Charley quickly replied he had."

Another of the stories has to do with a country school teacher in Mississippi, who asked him forty pupils ranging in age from 8 to 14 who was the Governor of the great and beloved commonwealth of Mississippi. Not a hand went up. Surprised, the teacher asked if it was possible not a pupil in the class knew who was the Governor of Mississippi, the greatest State in the Union. There was no response and shocked and angry the pedagogue dismissed school and ordered the scholars to talk to their parents that evening and come back in the morning prepared with the right answer. In the morning after the roll call and usual preliminaries, Mr. Schoolteacher repeated the question. No hand went up. The question was more sternly repeated. Finally little Frankie in the back row raised his hand timidly.

"Ah, Frankie," said the teacher, "I'm glad there is one ray of intelligence in this class. Who is the Governor of our great commonwealth?"

"Teacher," replied Frankie, "you told us to ask our parents who is Governor of our great State. Well, I asked Pa and he said he was, but Ma says he's such a liar you can't believe him."

First Guest at Palace

Who is to have the delightful privilege of being the first guest to register at the new Palace? Already there is a friendly rival for this honor among some society people of both sexes. Colonel J. C. Kirkpatrick, the manager of the noted caravansary, is discreetly keeping his own counsel on this subject until the time shall have arrived for opening the place. In a final selection for the honor, it is whispered, the following names will be seriously considered: Mr. and Mrs. William H. Crocker, Mrs. Eleanor Martin, Judge W. W. Morrow, Mrs. Francis Carolan, Mrs. Harriett Alexander of New York, Collector of Port Fred S. Stratton, William F. Herrin and Edward Greenway. The first guest to register at the old Palace in the seventies was the late Leland Stanford. When the Fairmont was opened about three years ago by the Law brothers, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt of New York, who happened to be in the city at the time, was asked to register as the hotel's first guest. She readily complied. Miss Jennie Crocker's name was the first on the St. Francis register when it was first opened to the public. When the place was rehabilitated after the fire Miss Crocker's friend, Mrs. Walter Martin, was the first to write her name on the register.

Eggs and Chickens

R. L. Martin of the United States Census Bureau, Washington, D. C., who has been at the St. Francis for several days, has some interesting things to say about poultry and eggs. He says the census to be taken next year will have very complete figures on the poultry business because every establishment which has an output of $200 annually or requires the larger part of one person's time will be included. The other day at Petaluma he was told that if all the chickens in that section were placed on one roost it would be 100 miles long. One incubator in that district hatches 110,000 chicks a month and many are immediately shipped in specially prepared crates for hundreds of miles. They can go without food or water for several weeks, but under no circumstances are the chicks to be given water or food until seventy-five hours after the hatching process. One other thing impressing Mr. Martin with Petaluma's boasted poultry industry is the fact that daily about $7000 worth of eggs are shipped from there. THE KNAVE.

TWENTY-FOUR AUTOS AT WOMAN'S FUNERAL

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—Twenty-four white automobiles formed the funeral cortege of Mrs. Angela Bumont of this city, whose funeral was held at Holy Cross cemetery today. Mrs. Bumont, who was a native of France, 44 years of age, had requested that automobiles be the only form of conveyance used at her funeral and this desire was respected by the members of the French colony here who attended the funeral. A large white steamer was used as a hearse.

COTTON DEALERS ARE INDICTED

Three Big Firms Charged With Violating Federal Anti-Trust Laws

GUTHRIE, Ok., Oct. 22.—Indictments were formally filed here today charging three of the largest cotton purchasing ginning and oil mill concerns of Oklahoma with alleged violations of the federal state anti-trust laws. The defendants are the Houghton and Gouglas Company, W. H. Coyle Company, and the Lawton Cotton Company, firms which control at least 125 smaller corporations. The indictments will, it is said, affect seventy-five persons, including many of the most prominent men in the state. They were returned following a grand jury investigation which has been proceeding under the direction of Attorney-General West of Oklahoma.

CASSADA'S BAND APPEARS TODAY AT GOLDEN GATE

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—Cassada's band will play at Golden Gate Park tomorrow, giving the following program: Anthem, "Star Spangled Banner"; March, "Coronation"; Ellengren Overture, "Fra Diavolo"; Aubert (a) "Morning," Peer Gynt Suite; Grieg (b) "Anitra Dance"; Grieg Operatic selection, "Nabucco"; Verdi Paraphrase, "Lovely"; Navandba Reminiscences of "The Emerald Isle"; Godfrey "Ave Maria"; Horst-Gounod Scenes from "Girl Question"; Stuart Waltz, "Jolly Fellows"; Volstedt March, "Portola"; La France "America."

ALASKAN GAMBLING KING GOES INSANE

Thinks Enemies Are Pursuing Him. Made Fortune in Klondike

SEATTLE, Oct. 23.—Samuel A. Bonfield, the banker of Fairbanks, Alaska, whose fortune is estimated at $3,000,000, rushed into police headquarters today and demanded protection from his enemies, who, he said, were pursuing him. Bonfield was locked up and a commission will investigate his mental condition. Bonfield is one of the best known of the Alaskan and Klondike gold field pioneers. He established the first saloon and gambling house in Dawson in the spring of 1897 and in one winter cleared $500,000. He was at one time the richest man in the north.

INGLESIDE HOSPITAL WILL BE IMPROVED

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—The Board of Health has requested the Supervisors to set aside $1500 to be used in dividing the principal ward of the public hospital at Ingleside into two for the better management of the institution, also to provide individual rooms for patients that should be isolated from other inmates of the hospital.

PORTOLA AND THE PADRES. SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—The sermon Sunday evening in St. Francisco church, Vallejo street, will be preached by the pastor, the Rev. T. Carubar. He will take for his subject, "Portola and the Padres." The speaker has been attached to some of the Franciscan missions in this archdiocese as assistant or pastor, and he has visited most of them between San Diego and Sonoma.

WOULD ABSOLVE KING OF BLAME

Strong Efforts Being Made to Shift Blame for Shooting of Ferrer

PARIS, Oct. 23.—A strong effort, in which it is easy to see government sympathy, is being made here to relieve the personality of the King of Spain of all responsibility for the execution of Francisco Ferrer. For a few days after the event nothing in that direction was visible. Then "investigations" tending to show the King's perfectly correct attitude from the standpoint of governmental etiquette, as well as that of private conduct, began to appear. The important French journals sent their star reporters to Madrid and their contributions are now appearing. These communications also declare that the cabinet members were all on the side of clemency but were afraid of the effect of such a decision on the anarchists of the country. There is no doubt that the new cabinet would have acted differently and for its existence Alfonso is responsible.

THE KING HAS GIVEN plentiful proofs of his courage, continue his champions. In this case he was in a position where he could not open his mouth. Surely, say the correspondents, France will not fail to recognize his right to unusual consideration. If this is granted, they add, it will be seen that King Alfonso in no way deserved the hard things that have been asserted of him in the past fortnight in this country.

M'CARRON'S DEATH GRIEVES MOTHER

Aged Woman Collapses at News of Senator's End, and Is in Critical Condition

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The aged mother of Senator Patrick H. McCarron collapsed today on learning of the death of her son and this afternoon her physicians said her condition is critical. Mrs. McCarron is 84 years of age. Keen interest in the choice of a leader of the Democratic party in Kings county to succeed Mr. McCarron arises from the general belief that Tammany will try hard to regain control of the party's affairs in Brooklyn Borough, which the Senator had persistently fought.

WILL HEAR SUGGESTIONS ON BUILDING LAWS

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—The building laws committee of the Board of Supervisors has arranged to hold a meeting next Tuesday afternoon, beginning at 1:30, at which it is proposed to consider the objections of those interested to the tentative revisions of the existing building law heretofore published and also such suggestions as may be made for its improvement.

The revisions are the work of the advisory committee of citizens and city officials organized to assist the building laws committee in the improvement of the existing ordinances, and its members will be present at the meeting. It has been ordered that all protests and recommendations shall be filed in writing previous to the date of the meeting.

GERMAN HUSAREN ORCHESTRA

Coming to Oakland and Will Appear Daily at the Pabst Cafe

Manager R. T. Kessler, with an eye to the public's approval and enjoyment, has engaged the famous Husaren orchestra of six soloists to appear at the Pabst Cafe, beginning November 1. These six artists are from the king's regiment of Saxony and are making their first appearance in California, following their engagement at the Seattle fair. They are resplendent in gorgeous military uniforms, handsome and stalwart Germans, and musicians of high rank in their fatherland. In their appearance at the Pabst Manager Kessler is giving the lovers of good music in Oakland a splendid treat, and there is no doubt in the world but what they will become a big drawing card for the Pabst Cafe.

PEARY DECLARES RASMUSSEN FAKER

Says it Was Impossible for Danish Explorer to Meet Cook Party

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Commander Robert E. Peary, the Arctic explorer, has telegraphed to scientific friends that it was impossible for Knud Rasmussen, the Danish explorer, to have seen any of the members of the Dr. Cook party and that any information which Rasmussen received was, therefore, not at first hand.
That the story told in Rasmussen's report of his impressions of Dr. Cook, as recently made public by Mr. Rasmussen at Copenhagen, lacks authority is the substance of Peary's late message.

The dispatch came from Peary a day or two ago and it has been scrupulously kept secret. Efforts to procure a copy of the dispatch today were unavailing.
It is known, however, that the telegram was sent by Peary from Maine after he had carefully read the report of Rasmussen, and that it is intended to discount what the Danish official, Rasmussen, had said in support of his belief in the full achievement of Dr.
Cook's ambition to reach the goal at the farthest North.

DISCREDITED RASMUSSEN.
Rasmussen did not assert any direct communication with Ah-Pe-Lah and I-Tock-A-Shoo. The message from Peary is intended to show the impossibility of Rasmussen having had any direct communication with those two members of the Cook expedition in its final dash.
Any information which Rasmussen received Commander Peary points out went through two or three others before reaching Rasmussen.
This filtering of information through indirect channels instead of coming to Rasmussen at first hand has been given considerable weight in the polar controversy by members of the scientific community here, particularly in view of the widespread interest aroused by Rasmussen's contribution to the rival claims of the honor of unfurling the flag at the Pole.

WARSHIPS READY TO SAY FAREWELL

Most Popular of Visiting Ships
Scrubs Up to Receive Crowd Today

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—Early Sunday morning the Japanese cruiser Idzumi, which has ranked with the British cruiser Bedford as the finest of the visiting warships, is to leave
San Francisco harbor for Monterey.
Captain Takeshita had expected and hoped to remain here until perhaps the middle of November, but upon orders being received last Friday from Tokyo, preparations were made for departure today. The call at Monterey will be made at the urgent request of many Japanese residents of that part of the state who have been unable to make the trip to this city to see the fine cruiser.

SNAPSHOOTERS AT WORK.
It was not until after 3 o'clock this afternoon that the German cruiser Arcona admitted the hordes of visitors on to her spottless decks. Then the crowd made up for lost time by nearly swamping the ship, thronging all the decks, the bridges and the fighting tops, where signal corps men with spy glasses were particularly attractive in the eyes of blushing maidens. On more than one occasion the good-looking sailors were asked to pose for their pictures, with a pretty girl on either side. What polite sailor could have refused, particularly when the pretty girls promised to send him a copy of the picture?

The launch operators said that if they had the crowd for that ship the Dutch cruiser Noord Brobant would probably receive visitors day and night. The Dutchmen has seldom been closed to visitors since her arrival ten days ago. There is not much English spoken on the Noord Brobant but that has made little difference. Captain Van Voss himself is a jolly fellow and will leave a lot of friends behind in San Francisco.

ITALIANS OFF FOR JAPAN.
Captain Casanova and his executive officer, Giovanni, say they feel amply repaid for the long run from Santos, Brazil, where their ship lay when orders were received from Rome to come to the Portola festival. They remarked today that nowhere in all their voyages had they experienced such hospitality as had been enjoyed here. Every mother's son on the Calabria has had a good time. Now within a few days they will go to Japan.

Visitors are to be received on board the British, Italian, German, Dutch and American warships this afternoon.

U. S. JURY SAID TO BE BRIBED

Federal Authorities Get Busy in Alleged Revenue Bribery Case

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The Federal authorities were informed today that an effort is being made to bribe the jury before whom Antonio and Phillip Musca are being tried on an indictment for swindling the government out of revenue at this port by unduly delaying and bribing government employees.
The names of the jurors, together with their addresses, were given to the authorities, who immediately dispatched skilled detectives to watch every movement of the suspected men until the trial is concluded before Judge Holt in the Criminal division of the United States Court. The name of a prominent Italian banker and importer, who is alleged to have subscribed to the jurybribing fund of $50,000, was also given to the authorities. His subscription was reported to be only a small part of the fund that has been raised.

If the bribe-money has been passed, the probabilities are that the whole transaction will be reported to the court at the re-opening of the case Monday morning, and one of the most dramatic situations ever witnessed in a United States court will be presented.
At the close of the examination of witnesses in the trial of the Muscas Friday evening, Charles E. Rasmussen, their chief counsel, moved for the dismissal of the charge against Antonio Musca, father of Phillip and head of the firm of Musca & Son, No. 25 Water street, on the ground that none of the government's witnesses who testified to receiving bribe-money had implicated the elder in the crime, that they had all testified that the money had been handed to them by Phillip Musca. Judge Holt now has that notion under consideration and will give his decision Monday morning.

WITNESSED BRIBES.
The contention of the government is that two or three of its witnesses testified that the elder Musca was present on more than one occasion when this bribe-money was paid and that he was fully cognizant of the crime. Should Judge Holt deny the motion of Mr. Rasmussen it will mean that the prosecution of the Muscas, who is prominent among the Italians and Greeks of the city, will be pushed.
Collector Loch, who returns today from a consultation with the Treasury Department officials at Washington, stated that the Musca case was the key to the entire situation. Should the Muscas be cleared on a technicality, he said, the way was open for freeling $10 or more manufacturers. Indictments against more than a dozen of these men were returned by the grand jury today.
Mr. Loch said further that Secretary McVead and other officials of the treasury, with whom he conferred, heartily approved everything done to break up smuggling and underweighting.
"No sort of plea made at Washington to shield persons from arrest and vigorous prosecution has influenced the authorities in the least," he declared. "We have severely scratched the surface yet so far as public exposure is concerned.
In fact it may be said that we have just

CRUISERS ARE COMING BACK FROM THE ORIENT

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—The cruisers Cleveland and Denver, soon to come back to the United States from the Philippines, are to be sent direct to the Marine Navy Yard for repairs. Their overhauling will be extensive.
Mare Island is to be named in orders as the home station for these ships hereafter, and also for the Iris, which will be named as parent ship for the torpedo flotilla.

The cruisers Galveston and Chattahoochee, also on the Asiatic station, are to go to the navy yard at Bremerton for their overhauling, made necessary by a long stay in Asiatic waters. Bremerton is to be the home station for those two vessels.

DEUTSCHER CLUB BALL.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—The annual ball and banquet of the Deutscher Club is to occur next Saturday evening at the new home of the club at 149 Mason street. The affair will serve as the dedicating of the club's new quarters and numerous surprises are promised the members and their friends. Paul Stendoff will manage the musical feature of the program and will be assisted by several other talented members of the club.

Up there on the sun-bathed slopes of Rock Ridge Park, with the homes of wealth of Claremont and Piedmont to the right and left of you, and with the glory of the bay and the Golden Gate before you, your opportunity is waiting for you

¶ Back of every line that we have written concerning Rock Ridge Park has been the conviction that you are a successful man seeking a home-site approaching as closely as possible your ideal upon which you wish to build your future home.
¶ We have tried to convey to you some of the enthusiasm that has been ours ever since that day when we first stood in Rock Ridge Park and came away under the spell of its compelling charm.

¶ We have tried to address you through the newspapers just as we should have talked to you were you some good friend of ours who had come to our office and made known his quest.
¶ We have wanted you to feel the sincerity that has been back of every word that we have written.

All we ask is that you go out to Rock Ridge Park today and see if a single one of the enthusiastic things we have said about it is untrue

¶ That's fair, isn't it?
¶ We have told you in straightforward fashion that up there in those radiant rolling hills lies the most beautiful residence park in all the wide reaches of California.
¶ We have told you that bordering it on the right is Claremont, that the Claremont Country Club adjoins it on the left, and that Piedmont is just a little ways beyond.

¶ We have called to your attention the glorious vision of the bay and the Golden Gate that you will find up there.
¶ We have emphasized the fact that the lots average 80 feet in frontage, and that the restrictions are such as to insure handsome homes being built and to debar undesirable neighbors.

By nightfall of our opening day, last Sunday, 54 lots, $104,850 worth of property, had been sold in Rock Ridge Park.

¶ Those people—and they were men and women such as you would like to have for neighbors—told us that every word had been written was true.

¶ In fact, they said the picture had been underpainted, because words can not do justice to Rock Ridge Park.

FINALLY, THEY TOLD US THAT INSTEAD OF ASKING AN AVERAGE PRICE OF ABOUT $21.00 PER FRONT FOOT FOR LOTS IN ROCK RIDGE PARK WE WOULD BE JUSTIFIED IN ASKING THREE TIMES AS MUCH.

That is why we say that if you have not already bought a lot in Rock Ridge Park your opportunity awaits you up there on its slopes of splendid beauty.

All day today our motor cars will be waiting at our office ready to take you to the property. For the convenience of san Francisco people we will have a motor car at the junction of Claremont and College avenues, which will meet every Claremont Key Route train. If Oakland people wish, they can take the College avenue cars, get off at Lawton and walk one block east.

STANFORD STUDENTS ARE REHEARSING FOR OPERA

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Oct. 23.—Rehearsals for the opera, "The Chimes of Normandy," which is to be elaborately staged by the Schubert Club of Stanford on the evening of October 28, are being held regularly. The training of the principals and the chorus is being carried forward under the direction of W. E. Bartlett of Oakland, who will direct the university orchestra.
The Schubert Club has arranged for the best of stage settings and has made all preparations to insure a fine production.

SEVERE STORM COMES AFTER VERY HOT DAY

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 23.—Louisville and many of the towns in Northern Kentucky were swept late last night and early today by a severe wind storm and heavy rains, which did much property damage, but as far as known caused no loss of life. The storm followed an unseasonably warm day, and coming with startling suddenness ripped through the city at a velocity of 80 m.p.h. in an hour. The temperature fell 21 degrees in a few minutes.

BULLET IN BODY CAUSES DEATH AFTER 33 YEARS

BELGRADE, Serbia, Oct. 23.—After being carried about him for thirty-three years, a bullet has killed Colonel Casadola, a veteran of the Serbo-Turkish war of 1878.
The bullet had baffled the surgeons of those days, who had no X-rays to help them find it, and as it gave no pain it had been let alone. The Colonel felt no inconvenience from the bullet until a few days before his death, when he felt a strange pressure on his left lung.
Thence the bullet must have found its way to his heart, for he suddenly sat erect, pressing his hand to his heart, gasped, "The bullet is here!" and died.

PRESBYTERIANS TO HAVE A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

SAN JOSE, Oct. 23.—The Presbyterian Synod which met here this morning took up reports that had been delayed because of the Dr. Day controversy yesterday.
Reports of foreign missions, ministerial relief and other topics were read and approved. The chief action at the morning session was the adoption of a resolution to establish a weekly Presbyterian newspaper to be published in San Francisco.

ACCUSED OF STEALING DIAMOND FROM WOMAN

MARYSVILLE, Oct. 23.—Robert Irwin, a bartender, was arrested in Oroville last night and brought to this city by Officer Blue to face a charge of grand larceny. He is accused by Mrs. Andrew Meyers of having taken a $100 diamond from one of her rings. Mrs. Meyers conducts a rooming house on Fourth street and until recently Irwin had occupied a room at that place. He suddenly departed for Oroville and after his departure Mrs. Meyers found that her jewel case had been rifled and the diamond gone.

PLAN CAMPAIGN TO AID BONDS AND ANNEXATION

The Progress and Prosperity Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, will hold a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms next Wednesday evening to organize a campaign committee for the harbor and city hall bond election, which

COTTON MARKET HITS PREDICTED 14c LEVEL

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The predicted 14-cent level was reached in the cotton market today. March cotton sold at that figure and May advanced about 1¢ per bale over Friday's closing. There was excited buying inspired by spinners takings, strength of foreign markets and expectation that the census bureau's ginning figures on moderate would confirm small crop estimates.

COTTON REACHES HIGH RECORD IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Cotton made a new high record for the season today, the May option going to 14.08 during excited selling. The market turned sensationally strong during the last hour of trading on heavy buying from spot interests. Wall street firms and commission houses in general. When the 14 cent level was reached the excitement grew intense.
Soon 14 was passed and 14.08 attained.
The market closed strong despite enormous realizing of profits.

of putting literature in the hands of the masses; his 500th free library has just been opened at Bonnyrigg, a canny Scotch burgh in Lothianshire. It has cost Mr.

Significance of Portola Week.

The net results of the Portola festival will not be known in their entirety for possibly months to come. But that it will be productive of much good to every community on the shores of San Francisco bay is already assured. No festival ever before held on either shore of the bay proved to be so powerful a loadstone. It drew visitors from all parts of California and neighboring States, and from many points east of the Rockies.

Ostensibly the festival commemorated a great historical and geographical event—the discovery of San Francisco bay 140 years ago. But that was a mere incident to serve the purpose of a peg on which to hang the more important object in view—namely, to show to the world that San Francisco's business quarters which had been desolated by rock of earth and fire and reduced to ashes and ruins, compared with which the ruins of the ancient cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum sunk into significance, had been restored on a larger, costlier, more magnificent and more durable form than they were in before the great catastrophe, in the brief period of three and one-half years. And in this respect the festival has been a marvelous success. Accredited representatives of the civilized nations of the Old World have been present through the week bearing witness to the grit and energy which the people of the western metropolis have displayed in the gigantic work of rehabilitation which they started before the ashes in which the city had been laid low had fairly cooled. And in the heart of that business quarter there is only the newness of the magnificent structures that have been erected since the work of rehabilitation began, and the patches of ruins which still surround the so-called down-town section to suggest the unprecedented calamity which befell the city in those awful three days of earthquake and consuming flame in April, 1906. Willing messengers will convey the intelligence of San Francisco's marvelous rise Phoenix-like from its ruins and its ashes to every capital in Europe and to the more ancient nations of the Orient. The Portola festival is, therefore, the greatest advertisement of San Francisco's resurrection, greatness and stability that could have possibly been obtained by any process.

The direct fruits will be to strengthen San Francisco's credit in the money and commercial centers of the world; to attract capital for investment in its future development and to assure its future permanency as the financial center of the Pacific Coast. And, in the light of the early completion of the Panama Canal and the diversion of the world's commerce to the Pacific ocean, it will turn the tide of emigration to the shores of San Francisco bay, each newcomer eager to reap a share of the enormous benefits which this section of the country is surely on the eve of harvesting. While, naturally San Francisco will reasonably hope to reap the larger share of those benefits no thoughtful student of the conditions existing here can fail to recognize the proportionate benefits which are sure to accrue to Oakland and neighboring communities on the eastern shore of the bay. That fact emphasizes the great importance to us to get ready to utilize the opportunities which this Portola festival has thrown in our way, and spur us on to get "our house in order" and to improve our water front with the greatest possible expedition so that we may be able to take the tide of commercial fortune at the flood.

Russia Preparing for War.

Russia is preparing for another struggle with Japan to recover her lost prestige in the Orient and, indirectly, the ultimate supremacy of the far eastern shores of Asia. Not only has she retained her grip on Harbin and a large part of Northern Manchuria, is double-tracking the Trans-Siberian railroad and otherwise increasing the facilities for the transportation of troops across the Asiatic continent, but she is likewise colonizing Siberia with men who will do the double service of developing the agricultural resources of the soil, to serve as a source of food supply, and be ready to respond to the call to military duty when the signal for a resumption of the conflict is given.

Russia is, moreover, adopting her old tactics of endeavoring to foment an anti-Japanese prejudice in the United States through the publication of inspired articles to incite American antagonism against Japan, based on alleged violations of the open-door in Manchuria, and to intensify public sentiment in this country against inter-racial assimilation. Before the late Russo-Japanese war, which she studiously worked to bring about under the belief that the results would be just the reverse of what they were, she flooded the lecture field in the United States with her paid agents to arouse popular sentiment in this country in her own favor in the approaching struggle.

One thing is certain, however, the Japanese are unquestionably just as industriously and unostentatiously preparing themselves for the new war of conquest which the Muscovite is planning to inaugurate when ready as they were during the nine years which followed immediately after their forcible expulsion from Port Arthur, shortly after the close of the war with China and its occupation by Russian troops. And the little brown men will probably be found, when the tocsin of war is sounded, quite as well, if not far better, prepared for the second contest for supremacy than they were when the late war began.

Transbay Passenger Movement

The records of the transbay ferry companies shows that at least 250,000 visited San Francisco from this side of the bay to witness Thursday's parade, according to the reports given out by ferry officials. That these estimates are too low is manifest from the fact that the narrow gauge ferry boats are credited with having carried only 1200. On ordinary days, as everybody knows who has traveled that route, every Southern Pacific Company ferry boat leaving Alameda mole between 6:18 a. m. and 9:33 a. m. carries a larger number of passengers than that. On Thursday every South Pacific Coast boat leaving Alameda mole carried between the hours of 6:33 a. m. and 12 m., at least 3000 passengers each, possibly more, as every one was loaded to the guards. In all probability, over 300,000 were transported across the bay from this side, if the real facts were known and Alameda county were given the proper credit. But there are some curious agencies still mysteriously at work striving to belittle the recent growth of the cities and their suburbs on this side of the bay, and this reported record of the transbay passenger movement on Thursday is one of the evidences.

The real facts, if given out, would prove conclusively that the population is on this side of the bay, and the purpose of keeping down the record of the transbay passenger movement by the San Francisco newspapers is to obscure that fact, just in the same way that the Oakland bank clearings and the gains in business of Oakland merchants and the output of Oakland's manufacturing industries and commerce are being manipulated by them to obscure Oakland's growth in population and industrial and commercial prosperity. It is small business for anybody to be engaged in, but there are some people who are sufficiently small and narrow-minded to indulge in it all the same, losing sight of the main and more important fact that Oakland and the other communities on this side of the bay cannot flourish without benefiting the metropolis also. The broader-minded and more sensible course to follow would be to give this side of the bay proper credit for everything that is being done and that is taking place as a means of inter-community benefit, for all of the San Francisco bay communities have a common interest at stake.

California Apple Growing.

California promises to become as famous as an apple-grower as it has become as an orange-producer. Orange culture is quite as productive in the northern end of the belt—in Southern Siskiyou, Shasta, Butte and Placer counties—as it is in the southern extremity, namely, in Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino, San Diego and Los Angeles counties, while the mid section of the seven-hundred-mile belt—in Tulare, Fresno and other San Joaquin valley counties—promises to develop in future as the chief orange-growing region.

Meantime, the humble industry of apple-growing which has been supposed to belong exclusively to the temperate zone—that is, to territory where the winters are severe—is growing apace in semi-tropic California, and, in the matter of profit to the producer is crowding the citrus industry hard in the struggle for supremacy.

California is, in fact, in the contest today with Oregon for supremacy as an apple-growing State. For nearly half a century Oregon was supposed to be without a peer in this industry, having out-ranked New York, famous for generations for its pippins. But California is beginning to put in a claim for the palm.

Indeed, for forty years past, the Julian district in San Diego county, has won the first prize in all horticultural fairs for the best apple displays against all comers. The district has just had an "apple day" celebration which has demonstrated that its standing as an apple-producer is still unimpaired.

For the past twenty years the Pajaro valley has, however, been the chief field of the California apple-growing industry. The fame of its orchards has for years extended to European countries and the British isles. This year there is strong competition between Austrian and British buyers for the crop. The crop is unusually large. The Belle fleur crop has gone to the southern counties and to Montana and other Northwestern States. The Newton Pippin crop, which is estimated to total at least one thousand carloads, goes to Europe and Great Britain, returning to the growers in the valley approximately $600,000. The output of the Pajaro apple-growing district this year will, it is presumed, exceed, in fact, $1,000,000.

Now the Riverside Press notes that that county is going into the apple-growing business, the Yucaipa valley and Oak Glen districts being extensively planted in apple trees. Hundreds of acres in these more elevated districts, adjacent to the Redlands and Riverside orange districts, have been planted in apple orchards within the past two years, and over two hundred carloads are being shipped out of the district this year at a big profit to the orchardists, despite a long wagon haulage to the railroad. Verily, there is no limit to California's horticultural possibilities.

The success of manual training and domestic science in the public schools of Oakland and other places on this side of the bay has been so pronounced that the Hayward School Trustees are planning to introduce both of them in the Hayward Grammar School course, which is another indication that this progressive suburban town is up to date in every department of public work.

ROOSEVELT PLANNED HEARST-PARSONS PACT

(Brooklyn Eagle, October 18.)

"The anti-Tammany alliance between William R. Hearst, the independent candidate for Mayor, and Congressman Herbert Parsons, chairman of the New York County Republican Committee, is in a large measure the work of former President Roosevelt.

"It is the direct outcome of the mysterious visit paid by Mr. Hearst to Mr. Roosevelt at the White House last November, and while it would manifestly be an exaggeration of fact to say that the former President is directly the present campaign, it may be positively asserted that he is kept constantly advised of the situation and that every step thus far taken by Congressman Parsons has the hearty approval of Mr. Roosevelt."

This remarkable statement was made to a reporter of the Eagle today by a well-known Manhattan lawyer, a man who enjoys the confidence not only of many of the former President's intimate associates, but also of several of the political and business friends of Mr. Hearst. The lawyer spends much of his time in Washington, and it was while he was there last winter that he learned from official sources that at the meeting between Roosevelt and Hearst an agreement, amounting almost to a bond, was entered into to accomplish the overthrow of Tammany Hall.

"The visit of Mr. Hearst to the White House on the evening of November 16 last," continued the lawyer, "has never hitherto been satisfactorily explained, but in view of recent developments I see no reason why the facts should be longer withheld from the public. The story, as it came to me from sources that I know to be trustworthy, is as follows:

INVITED BY ROOSEVELT TO CALL AT WHITE HOUSE.

"A day or two before the conference took place Mr. Hearst, who was then in Washington, received through a third party—a personal friend of mine—a pressing invitation to call upon the President at the White House. Mr. Hearst considered for a brief time and then sent to the President a reply, stating in effect: 'Both you and I are fighting for principles. For many of the principles for which you stand I also stand, and for you personally I have the highest respect. I do not, however, believe that it would be the part of wisdom for us to meet at the present time. The meeting might be misconstrued by the public to your serious injury. On due consideration I believe that you yourself will take this view of the situation.'

"Although the message was politely phrased it was, nevertheless, very firm. Mr. Hearst really thought that the President would look at the matter in a light similar to his own and expected to hear nothing further from the White House. To his astonishment not long after Mr. Roosevelt received the reply the President sent another message to Mr. Hearst, emphasizing the invitation. To this Mr. Hearst answered that he was still of his first opinion, but that if the President insisted he would, of course, yield and visit the White House.

ROOSEVELT INSISTED ON MEETING.

"President Roosevelt did insist—in fact, he insisted very strenuously. He informed Mr. Hearst that he (the President) would be at the White House all day Monday, November 16, and that he would be pleased to see the New York editor at any hour, morning, afternoon or evening. Mr. Hearst replied that it would be difficult for him to meet the President on the day named, as he (Hearst) had many engagements to fulfill. He mentioned that in the evening of the day named he had arranged to attend the theater with his family.

"More insistent than ever, Mr. Roosevelt thereupon sent Secretary Loeb to Mr. Hearst with instructions to ask the editor if he could not call at the White House between the acts of the play. To this Mr. Hearst agreed, though against his better judgment.

"As the newspapers of the following day announced, President Roosevelt and Mr. Hearst were in conference for some time at about 10 o'clock that evening, but the object of the conference could not be learned. As a matter of fact, as soon as Mr. Hearst arrived the President got right down to business.

OVERTHROW OF TAMMANY OUTLINED AT CONFERENCE.

"He informed Mr. Hearst that his chief aim, Mr. Taft having been elected to the Presidency, was to accomplish the overthrow of Tammany Hall in New York. He told the editor that he (the President) had every confidence in the ability of Congressman Parsons as leader of the New York Republican machine, but that he realized that it would be impossible to destroy Tammany unless Mr. Hearst would consent to become a party to the plan.

"The upshot of it all was that when President Roosevelt and Mr. Hearst parted company that evening they had practically entered into a binding agreement to seek the overthrow of Tammany at this election. And in view of the 'inside story' of that remarkable meeting, now made public for the first time, the developments of the last week in the municipal campaign are easy to understand.

"Both Roosevelt and Hearst sought the destruction of Tammany. Mr. Hearst, as he has repeatedly declared, did not want personally to enter the Mayoralty race, but when Justice Gaynor failed to repudiate the rest of the Tammany ticket there was no alternative. And Mr. Parsons, familiar with all the details of the Roosevelt-Hearst pact, accepted with greater pleasure than otherwise the advent of Mr. Hearst and will continue to contribute to the working out of the agreement.

ROOSEVELT INFORMED OF PRESENT SITUATION.

"In the meanwhile Mr. Roosevelt, though far away in the jungles of Africa, is not beyond the cable's reach. Of every important move in the campaign he has been speedily informed, and the situation has his approval. It is no secret that powerful influences have been brought to bear on Otto A. Bannard, the Republican candidate for Mayor, to withdraw in favor of Mr. Hearst. Thus far they have not been successful.

"BIG STICK" MAY FORCE BANNARD'S RETIREMENT.

"But should the time arrive—as it may—when in the judgment of Mr. Roosevelt Mr. Bannard's retirement should become feasible—well, the 'big stick' is still persuasive.

"Possibly this story will be denied. Politics warrants many things which would otherwise not happen. But you may take it from me that the story is absolutely accurate in all its essential details and that in the end its truth will be officially admitted."

EDITOR'S NOTE.—The chief subject of President Roosevelt's conversation with Mr. Hearst was NOT any future political contest in New York City, but the Standard Oil letters, the public men exposed in them and others whose names had not yet been disclosed. The activity of Standard Oil in New York politics and particularly in Brooklyn politics was incidentally mentioned.

Topics Timely and Interesting

Martin Beck of the Orpheum circuit was talking about horses. "Dash, the steel man," said Mr. Beck, "has a short way with horses. One tackle him last month on the plaza of the Atlantic City Hotel—talked straight ahead to him for thirty minutes about grand opera. Darn! the instant there came a pause, said earnestly: 'I tell you, sir, there's no lobster like Maine lobsters.' The boss stared. 'No doubt,' he said, 'no doubt. But what that got to do with what I was talking about?' Dash heaved a yawn. 'By the way,' he said, 'what were you talking about?'

Dr. Frank Crane, chum of Eugene Field, and pastor of the People's Church, Chicago, whose hold upon his congregation is in his epigrammatic style, in an informal talk before the Woodlawn Art-club, declared "the worst thing about hell is that it will be such a bore." Then he added: "There are new styles in everything but sin. Sin is antiquated. The Chicago Tenderloin is the same as that of Pompeii. Dog catchers ought to be compelled to catch present day shirkers of duty," he added. "Bees are wiser than human beings; they kill the drones." Then this ray of golf: "There is more joy in laying bricks than in chasing a little ball around a square—more joy to see how many strokes it takes to get it into nine holes."

The Rev. Mr. Sims, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Vinton, Ia., read the following unique notice to his congregation on a recent Sabbath morning: "The funeral service of the late Mrs. Prayer Meeting will be held in the Sabbath school room of the Presbyterian Church on Wednesday evening at 7:30. She had been feeble for some time, but recently her decline had been rapid. Her death was not unexpected. The doctor could scarcely detect any pulse on Wednesday evening of last week. Cause of death is said to be heart failure from want of exercise and neglect of her family. Special notice.—The officers of the church are requested to act as pallbearers, and the teachers and officers of the Sabbath school as honorary pallbearers. The choir is requested to sing."

Rather pathetic is the story of the young Swedish girl Agathe Sorenson, who, to pay a family debt and save her father's good name, sold her beautiful golden hair. Such a marvelously long braid it made that the hairdresser who bought it showed it in the recent exhibition at Nancy, France. Agathe received $60 for her hair. The dealer who paid her this disposed of the braid to a Parisian coiffeur for $200. The woman who now wears it on her head gave $400 for it.

President's Tour Helps Him As Much as the Country

In two senses, such a tour as that which President Taft is now making promotes better understanding. It helps the President and it helps the country. It has a decidedly modifying effect on executive action, and may produce fruits of importance far exceeding its cost.—New Haven Register.

In these days of easy communication, what is the real need of a President's going out and meeting the people face to face? Why should he employ two months out of twelve in such a fashion, especially when his regular summer vacation in addition takes him away from the national capital for the larger part of the heated term?—Providence Journal.

That the trip will enhance the popularity of the President is undoubted, but this will be solely because he deserves it. There is an old saying to the effect that the man I don't like is the man I don't know. It is especially true in politics of the larger sort. — Philadelphia Inquirer.

This country is so immense and its interests are so varied and so far reaching that no man can know his fellow citizen, has given me some light on this question:

"In my late trip I went down from Columbus to Sumter, a distance of forty-two miles, on the fast train to Charleston, which makes no stop from Columbus to Sumter, and covers the distance in an hour and ten minutes, or at about forty miles an hour. At a certain point of the journey I was standing at the back end of the train, and had just noticed that we were going at a very average speed, and was impressed with how the track below was flying away from us. Just at that moment I noticed a large horsefly take the track behind us, about on a level with my head, and start after the train, and in an incredibly short time it was seated on the roof, facing, riding along quite at ease. Then it would dart off, circle around a little, and then again start after the train, which it could easily overtake.

"So its speed must have been upwards of forty miles an hour, and it was not doing its best. So you might truly say there was a fly that could fly."—Newberry, S. C., Observer.

Three and one-third million dollars is being expended by the United States annually for the education of more than 30,000 Indian boys and girls.

Looking to the broader and practical education of the Indian, the government is expanding its system of apportioning lands. The Indians are also being protected against fraud by white settlers and land grafters.—New York Herald.

Secretary Knox's request for the resignation of Mr. Charles R. Crane has stirred the hot spirit of revolt among the gentlemen's family and friends.

The family and friends are not yet in open rebellion against the United States government. They still have hopes that the President will reverse Secretary Knox's decision and thrust Charles R. down his throat willy-nilly. But if the President falls—then look out!

And must our Charley die? And must our Charley die? Then several dozen Cranish men will know the reason why!

Secretary Knox apparently fails to realize the seriousness of the situation. The idea of his passing civil tumult, by his mere act of exiling on the qualifications of the subordinate, seems not to have occurred to him. It is certainly time for him to awake and take notice of the glowing embers of rebellion that his act has fanned into activity.

This country has already had a Door Rebellion, a Shays Rebellion, a Whiskey Rebellion and a Great Rebellion. It seems now threatened with a Crane Rebellion—if heated expressions on the part of Mr. Crane's family and friends are to be taken at anything like their face value.

The country does not want this. It has had enough Rebellions. But alas! how avoid it?

Secretary Knox seems to be adamant: he does not want Mr. Crane in the diplomatic service, because he thinks he is too good for it.

Fly That Beat Railroad Train

Dr. Welling furnishes us with the following experience and observation with the large horsefly:

"Some years ago a large horsefly, in his wild flight, came plump against my eye and gave me a great deal of pain and discomfort. This little piece of experience put me to wondering how fast they could fly, but without furnishing me with any means of finding out. However, another piece of experience, or, rather, observation, has given me some light on this question:

"In my late trip I went down from Columbus to Sumter, a distance of forty-two miles, on the fast train to Charleston, which makes no stop from Columbus to Sumter, and covers the distance in an hour and ten minutes, or at about forty miles an hour. ## Potato Growing in England Counsel Frank W. Mahlin states that, according to a Nottingham newspaper, an English potato growing contest in Derbyshire has resulted in a yield of 229 pounds from 1 pound of seed, cut into 80 sets. There were 53 competitors. The second in rank raised 177 1/2 pounds from 1 pound. The average for the whole 53 competitors was 100.6 pounds. Last year in the same locality what was called "a world's record" was established when 204 pounds of potatoes came from a pound of seed—25 pounds less than this year's yield. "The competitions are held under the auspices of a garden association, whose object is to promote and improve the production of vegetables.—Conciliar Report.

TRADES COUNCIL IS FOR M'CARHTY

Local Branch of Organized Labor Rallies to Support of Union Leader

The Building Trades Council of Alameda county has endorsed the candidacy of P. H. McCarthy for Mayor of San Francisco in the following resolution:

Whereas, The voters of San Francisco will, on November 2, elect a complete new set of city and county officials, both executive and legislative; and

Whereas, During the past two years and since the present administration has been in office in San Francisco, conditions have been getting worse and worse, public confidence has been almost entirely destroyed and the predatory rich, together with their lackeys, the "Citizens' Alliance," have been encroaching more and more on the industrious and deserving working people, almost completely destroying prosperity, reducing wages and raising prices to almost prohibitive rates and endangering the very existence of organized labor; and

Whereas, San Francisco and Alameda counties are so close together and their interests so nearly identical that conditions on one side of the bay influence conditions on the other; and be it

Resolved, by the Building Trades Council of Alameda county, in regular meeting assembled, That we call the attention of all the friends of organized labor and decent government in San Francisco to the necessity of supporting at the polls such men as can be depended on to give to the city and county an administration which will tend to bring about greater prosperity and healthier conditions generally; and be it further

Resolved, That we sincerely urge on all good citizens the unqualified support of P. H. McCarthy for Mayor and the entire Union Labor party ticket, believing that in the event of their election San Francisco will again come into her own and that with public confidence restored, prosperity will again reign in the metropolis, the bay cities and the entire State; and be it further

Resolved, That the secretary of this council be and is hereby instructed to submit copies of these resolutions to the press and to all affiliated organizations in San Francisco.

DESERTS BRIDE ON BRIDAL DAY

Wealthy Temperance Worker of Pittsburg Disappears as Marriage Bells Toll

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Oct. 23.—The police of Colorado Springs have been asked to look for William C. Lilley, a wealthy retired church and temperance worker of Pittsburg, Pa., who disappeared a week ago on the day set for his marriage, and who is believed to have come here, where he is said to have relatives. No charge has been preferred against him so far as the local officers know, but Pittsburg is anxious to locate him.

According to the information received here there are two broken hearts in Pittsburg as a result of his disappearance. In fact, it is said that complications in his affairs of the heart are directly responsible for his leaving. On the other hand, friends of the man believe that Lilley has not voluntarily absented himself. When he disappeared he was known to carry upwards of $500, and on this ground they have advanced the theory of foul play.

Colorado Springs authorities have been asked to locate him, because he told acquaintances that he had a brother in Colorado Springs and that he contemplated visiting him this winter.

IS PILLAR OF CHURCH.
Lilley is 63 years of age and had been a pillar of the First Presbyterian Church of Pittsburg as well as a leader in the fight against the demon rum in that city. Both of the women to whom it is charged he was engaged also are leaders in church circles. The evening of the day that he disappeared Lilley was to have been married to Miss Ada Martin, a school teacher, it is said. When her fiancé failed to appear the shock prostrated the bride-to-be and she has been ill since, it is reported. When this became public, according to the reports, Miss Elizabeth Volze came forward with the claim that she also was engaged to Lilley.

You can save a lot of time by being sure where you want to go before starting. A small boy is never so happy as when he is riding and eating at the same time.

M'CARHTY TELLS OF HIS POLICIES

Says Fate of San Francisco Rests on His Election as Mayor

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—Business men and wage earners greeted P. H. McCarthy at Harrison and Eighteenth streets today.

"I am proud of this hearty reception," the Union Labor nominee said. "I am at all times glad to receive such evidences of your good feeling and respect, but in the present instance it is fraught with additional significance, as it shows I am certain to receive your whole-souled support in the fight I am making for Mayor of San Francisco."

The 2d of next November will mark an epoch in the history of this city. Then the citizens will either select a set of officials pledged to the expansion of business interests, to the development of good feeling, to the establishment of peace in commercial pursuits, to the institution of a reign of industrial harmony, or they will choose others who, when they assume control, will maintain a continuance of the ruinous policies of the past two years.

PROMISES TO BE SQUARE.
"If you desire a change, if you wish a government of the people to succeed a government for the few, if you desire legislation which will be fair and square for all and not especially for the benefit of corporations and special interests, you can secure it by casting your votes for the ticket of which I have the honor to be the head."

"The Union Labor ticket represents the best interests of San Francisco. The men on it will stand by the platform of the Union Labor party. They will bring about an era of business thrift for the merchants and one of busy times, good wages and abundance of work for the sons of toil."

"When I am Mayor I shall be Mayor of all the people, and I now pledge myself to bring about a close affiliation of all classes. I shall cultivate a spirit of cordiality and promise you that labor and capital will for the first time in the history of this city assume harmonious relations."

FOR LOCAL INDUSTRIES.
"There is another thing I shall do for the benefit of the whole population, and that is, see that all the supplies that can possibly be produced here are furnished in our local mills and foundries."

"I pledge myself to restore wages to what they were when the 'Good Government' outfit commenced to misgovern in San Francisco."

Charles M. Fickert, candidate for District Attorney, spoke of the statements circulated about him by the forces of the opposition. He was cheered upon the conclusion of his remarks.

W. J. Loughery, T. J. Healy, J. J. Enos, J. O. Walsh, P. J. Killeher, T. F. O'Neill, J. D. McLaughlin, Charles Nelson and John A. Kelly made short addresses.

ABDUL HAMID'S RICHES
STILL BEING UNEARTHED

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 23.—The whole extent of Abdul Hamid's hidden treasure has not yet been revealed. The most valuable collection of ancient arms and armor in the world is now being dug up in the cellars of Yildiz Kiosk and in the mosques of Constantinople.

Dr. K. F. Martin, a Swedish expert, recently attached to the Swedish legation in Constantinople, states that if the whole of the ancient arms and armor existing in Turkey were classified and formed into a museum, the history of the art Gothic weapons would have to be re-written, in consequence of the new and valuable material thus coming to light.

The various collections comprises not only ancient Saracenic arms and armor, but quantities of European medieval work as well. One Saracenic collection hung on the walls of the Irene Church in Constantinople, is said to be larger than all similar collection in Europe put together.

H. MORTON'S FIRST ANNIVERSARY SALE

It is with great satisfaction that I announce the closing of the first year's business at my Broadway and 14th street store. I duly appreciate the patronage of the Oakland public which has made it possible to show an increase of one-third over the previous year's sales—a very gratifying condition—considering the state of trade over the entire country. It required a good deal of COURAGE to open a store which is acknowledged to be one of the FINEST on the coast, under such trying financial conditions as have prevailed during the past year—therefore the success achieved is the more appreciated. In expressing my acknowledgment, I offer for the last week of this month, commencing Saturday, the 23d, a number of ANNI-VERSARY SALE BARGAINS—which may be used as Pre-Christ-mas purchases. For instance, it was my good fortune to secure a large shipment of WATCHES just before the advance in price, and therefore I am in a position to offer SPECIAL BARGAINS, should you need a good time piece. Again, in the matter of DIAMONDS I am showing the largest and finest it had ever been my privilege to offer. I cannot in this advertisement enumerate all the BARGAINS I shall offer, but simply say you will find SPECIALS in Jewelry, Sil-verware, Cut Glass and Clocks.

Stationery Department

I desire to call special attention to my ENGRAVING DEPART-MENT. My sale of Wedding Announcements, Calling Cards and other Society Engraving has so increased that I have been compelled to add new machinery to keep up with my orders. I want you to become acquainted with the SUPERIOR character of my work in this line, and therefore I will offer for THREE DAYS ONLY—Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday—Plate and 100 Cards in Script for $1.50; 100 Wedding Announcements for $10.00. If you wish a box of my fine paper, you may have your own initial stamped on the same in any plain color without extra charge.

CRUISER ORDERS AT MARE ISLAND

Activity Among Warships at the Naval Station This Week

VALLEJO, Oct. 23.—The big naval auxiliary cruiser Buffalo which has been at the yard for several weeks since returning from the Philippines Islands will take her departure next Wednesday for Pinchilangu Bay, Mexico, where she will take an expedition of yard mechanics, who are to make a number of repairs to the United States naval coaling station at that place. The mechanics who will be taken south will number in the neighborhood of a dozen and will consist of four sheet metal workers, two shipwrights, one wharf builder, three house carpenters and one plumber and fitter. It is estimated that it will require from a month and a half to two months to make the repairs to the coaling station. After landing the men at Pinchilangu Bay the Buffalo will return to Magdalena bay and take up her temporary station at that place while the vessels of the torpedo boat flotilla are at target practice. The cruiser Denver which has been detached from the Asiatic station will sail from Cavite to Mare Island on December 1, 1909. The Denver will be thoroughly overhauled at the local yard. The Cleveland will sail about the same time for Mare Island to go out of commission and receive a thorough overhauling. The cruiser New Orleans will go into commission at Mare Island on January 1, 1910, and sail shortly thereafter for the Asiatic station. The cruisers Cincinnati and Raleigh will be commissioned at Mare Island on April 19, 1910, and sent to the Asiatic station shortly thereafter.

SCHOLARS SHOW LOVE FOR CITY

Fresno Youths Exhibit Civic Pride in Beautifying Highways

FRESNO, Oct. 23.—Imbued with a spirit of civic pride twenty four boys of the high school freshman class have organized themselves into what is to be generally known as the "Observation Club." This organization is to have as its object the removal of unsightly grasses and obstacles on the highways of the city and vacant lots and will work in harmony with the superintendent of streets. The particularly good thing about the work of the club is that it will ask for no outside help or contributions of money. The boys are not above performing the work they deem necessary themselves. Since the organization of the club and up to the present time the members have been pledged to secrecy and it was only when the students were seen on several occasions making their way through the streets and doing their work that curiosity was aroused and inquiries made that disclosed the existence of the club. White Primard, club leader, is in full accord with the work of the club. He is allowing the students full control of the organization. The boys have elected their own committees, whose object shall be to discover unsightly spots about town and to report them to the club. The club has a list of unsightly spots and a list of members. All members of the club are pledged to secrecy and who will have full control of the organization. Eventually it is the purpose of the club to take up the matter of experiments on agricultural permits by planting the leading cereals and endeavoring to ascertain from a scientific standpoint the best soils and the most profitable methods of growing them. The club elect a number of sites are already in view and Superintendent of Streets is willing to permit the club to take the matter up with the Chamber of Commerce and the Farmers Union with an idea of securing experimental seed grains from the state university.

WILL HAVE GALLIC DANCES AT CONCERT

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—The tenth annual Irish concert and ball of the Original Gaelic Dancing Club will be held at the auditorium next Tuesday evening. The grand march led by Mr. and Mrs. H. McCarthy, with the members of the club in costume following, will begin at 9:30. The members of the Caledonian and the Thistle clubs will be present in highland costume and will give an exhibition of the highland fling and the reel and the Thistle. The members of the Original Gaelic Dancing Club will perform in Irish reels and jigs, especially four and eight hand reels. The following comprise the committee of arrangements: F. J. Kelleher, chairman; James J. Pury, secretary; John Mulcairn, Edward F. R. J. McKlen, E. J. Kelly, Jeremiah Sullivan, John Walsh, Eugene McCallister, D. Fitzpatrick and J. J. Clifford.

STEAD ORGANIZES ROUNABOUT CLUB

Its Object Is to Enable Travelers in London to Get Acquainted

LONDON, Oct. 23.—If a Londoner is seen wearing a miniature flag which he or she, turns down a la taximeter, he is not a harmless lunatic with the delusion that he is a taxi-cab but simply a member of the "Flag Section" of the Roundabout Club. This organization has been started as a means of making London less of a wilderness for the lonely young man or woman. Anyone sporting these flags—they are worn in pairs—can make the acquaintance at sight of anyone else similarly adorned, if he is so minded. The signal for "I desire to know you" is to turn the flag down, as a taxi-cab driver turns down his flag when he is engaged. This queer club is the idea of Mr. W. T. Stead, who is working hard to break down the barrier of "standoffishness" which surrounds the average proud Briton. It is this national trait of consciousness that creates the demand for such a club as this, which would have no excuse for existence in any other country. But in London there are thousands of people, strangers to the city, who go about friendless because getting acquainted is so difficult for them.

HUNDRED TONS OF HONEY IS HARVEST

Kings County Beekeepers Effect Sale of Their Product

HANFORD, Oct. 23.—By a deal made with the Guggenheim Company Kings County beekeepers have disposed of their harvest of honey amounting to 140 tons. The arrangement is along the lines of a vertical pool and members of the Kings County Beekeepers Association and also outsiders are concerned in the deal. P. H. Bales engineered the deal the amount of his personal honey being 70,000 pounds and the sale was made through A. Lindquist, agent for the Guggenheim Company. In addition to the honey secured in the deal three cars have already gone forward, making the total output of the county of nearly 200 tons. The price received by the beekeepers was $37.50 per ton, which is somewhat less than was paid for the crop last season which is accounted for by Mr. Lindquist on account of the larger crop, especially in southern California. The deliveries will be made to the warehouse of High Lake & Co., north of the Santa Fe depot. In addition to the honey there is about two tons of wax that is yet unsold though a deal is in progress for its disposal. The prevailing price for this product has been 25 cents per pound.

Complaints!

It used to be good form in the utility business to ignore the word "complaint." The word had an unpleasant sound to managerial ears. "Information desk," "Adjustment bureau" or "Department of Claims" were among the terms favored and every effort was made to minimize the fact that the company ever received such a thing as a protest from a patron.

Times change, and so do customs. We do not like the word complaint any better than you do, but we are frank to admit that in a business as large as ours some mistakes will happen and some imperfections occur. We know that you realize this and will consider the MANNER in which we rectify errors, RATHER THAN THE ERROR ITSELF.

We guard against defects and strive to prevent them to the best of our ability. When things go wrong with the gas service we prefer to have you tell us immediately and give us a chance to straighten them out instead of cherishing a grudge against us and telling your neighbors about it.

An overcharge or a delayed connection may be due to no conscious fault of ours, but the spirit in which we correct the mistake is the criterion by which you should judge our professed determination to render good service.

Our employees are instructed to be as polite and willing to repair grievances as the management itself, and we believe, as a body, that they are. If, however, one makes a slip and temporarily forgets our duties to the public, you cannot possibly regret it any more than we do.

Convent in Poland Is Despoiled of Jewels Worth Several Million Roubles

OZENSTOCHOWA, Russian Poland, Oct. 23.—During the night robbers entered the chapel of the Pauline Convent here and despoiled the much revered image of the Virgin of the Robe, with its pearls, the diamond-studded crown and many votive offerings of jewels. The image itself was not damaged. The objects stolen have an artistic value of several million roubles. Today the chapel, which had closed up on the discovery of the outrage, was surrounded with a great crowd of weeping and praying men and women.

The convent is famous for its reputation.

DOUBLE TRACKING ELECTRIC LINE

Southern Pacific Pushing the Work on Its New Local Road in Berkeley

Newell-Hendricks, Inc., announces that the Southern Pacific has begun actual construction work on its double track electric line from San Pablo avenue eastward to the Santa Fe. Rails, ties and other materials are already on the ground and the completion of this portion of the line bids fair to add greatly to the real estate activity in Regent's Park Nos. 4, 6 and 8 and Fairmount Park. It serves to complete another link in the transportation lines which the Southern Pacific is rapidly installing through the North Berkeley district and on which they are spending in the neighborhood of $2,000,000. Sales in Fairmount Park and Regent's Park are showing a steady gain and all prospects point to a very satisfactory fall business.

CHILDREN AWAIT CATHOLIC HOMES

Babies That Are Available for Good Berths at Associated Charities

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—The Children's Agency, which is a department of the Associated Charities, has a number of Catholic children which are available for adoption. It is a rule of the agency that the children of Catholic parents must go into Catholic homes and children of other religions be taken into the homes of persons who have the same religion. The Children's Agency, which is located at 1550 Jackson street, will receive applications from responsible Catholics for the adoption of several beautiful Catholic children.

There is Joseph, nearly 5 years of age. He has wavy brown hair. He is large for his age and strong. Anna is 15 months old. She is considered a "prize package" at the agency. John is a bright, sensitive chap 4 years old. He has a remarkable good ear for music and can sing well. Vincent is a chubby little fellow of 2 1/2 years of age.

For anyone who would feel called to provide a home for two children, the agency has several brothers and sisters. Two are boys and two are girls, and 9 years of age. They are of German extraction and are doing very well in school.

The Rev. Father Towsy will preach at the late mass tomorrow morning at old St. Mary's church (Pauline). In the evening the Very Rev. Father Wyman will deliver the sermon. The sermon at the late mass this evening at St. Ignace will be preached by the Rev. Father Taylor, S. J., and the Rev. Father Wetzel will be seen in the pulpit in the evening.

His Grace Archbishop Riordan officially announced today that he had appointed the Rev. John C. Conlan as chaplain at St. Vincent's Asylum at St. Vincent's, near San Rafael.

The patronal feast of the French church, Our Lady of Victory, will be celebrated tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock. There will be a solemn high mass, a paschal of the Blessed Virgin by the pastor and solemn benediction. The local clergy will be assisted by several priests of the city and of Menlo Park.

An entertainment and social will be given Tuesday evening at Leander's Hall, 3768 Twenty-fourth street, near Church, for the benefit of St. Patrick's booth of St. Paul's church. The entertainment will be only 25 cents and a clever program has been arranged. Mrs. C. Stokes has charge of the affair.

Division No. 10 of the Ancient Order of Hibernians will hold the annual ball next Saturday evening at the Building Trades auditorium, Fourteenth and Guerrero streets. The grand march will be led off at 10 p. m. Tickets of admission are 50 cents.

A reception to Oakland to the Right Rev. Bishop O'Connell by members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians is being planned. The committee in charge of the event is composed of J. J. Cox, chairman; William S. Finn, D. S. McCarthy, E. J. Murphy, D. P. Spillane and James Corley.

PLACES BAN ON BOGUS CONCERN

U. S. Postal Authorities Squelch Los Angeles Stock and Bond Company

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The postoffice department has issued a fraud order against the Guarantee Securities Company of Los Angeles, Cal., depriving them of the use of the mails. The concern was engaged in the business of purchasing stock for people not having sufficient capital to buy outright. The company delivered the stock was not to be made until all installments were paid. The concern advertised extensively in metropolitan papers and got the bulk of its business through this method. In the advertisement it was stated that no interest, commission or other charges would be made for purchasing stocks.

A circular issued and sent through the mail entitled "Stocks and How to Buy Them" represented that on the receipt of the first installment the entire amount of stock desired would be purchased at the prevailing market price and held until the receipt of the last installment, when it would be sent to the owner.

The investigation made by the postal inspector developed the fact that it was the practice of the company to make no attempt to purchase them, but to retain the money. Delivery was made only upon the payment of the last installment and only then if the market values had in the meantime decreased. The concern relied on the decrease to fulfill their obligations and did not intend to deliver stocks which had increased in value.

The inspector who conducted the investigation found the concern consisted of one Junior Sloan, who was without any financial resources. Sloan stated that the assets of the concern amounted to between $10,000 and $15,000, consisting of stocks, bonds, etc., but when asked to exhibit them could find certificates of stock amounting to a total of only $65.

EAMES' ADVICE IS LEARN AT HOME

Miss Elinor V. Root Proves That Prima Dona's Suggestion Is Good

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—"American girls desiring to become operatic singers do not have to go abroad to study," according to Madame Eames. This advice was given to Miss Elinor Virginia Root less than four years ago, when Miss Root sought the opinion of the famous prima donna. That Madame Eames' confidence in the teaching of the United States was justified was evidenced a few days ago when Miss Root proved to be one of four successful candidates who carried off the Metropolitan scholarship.

"I was singing at the Maine festival about four years ago," said Miss Root today, "when the idea struck me that I should go abroad to study music and singing. I asked Madame Eames for her advice on the subject and she unhesitatingly advised me to study right here in this country. She told me that there were just as good teachers here as abroad and that the results were just the same. I then began training with Signor Pizzavella and to him I owe a great deal of my success."

GERMAN BURLESQUE IS TO BE PRESENTED

The German Turnverein, the leading Teutonic organization in this city, founded a dramatic section on September 1 for the purpose of presenting German plays which are seldom seen on this side of the continent. In the past several of the large cities support German theatres, but the expense of bringing such companies overland forbids their coming to this coast. The dramatic section of the Turnverein has, however, arranged to present several of the big hits of the Berlin stage with local talent. The first of these plays, a burlesque by Goeritz, will be presented at Germania Hall November 7, under the direction of Max Burheim. It is in two acts and is entitled "A Night in the Haystack Tunnel."

ADAMS POINT BUNGALOW BARGAIN

If you want a home in one of the best residence districts of Oakland, do not miss the opportunity of seeing this beautiful modern bungalow; very sunny; hardwood floors; beautiful interior finish; large living and dining rooms; 2 fire places, (one gas and one coal); built-in china closet; has drive-way and garage; one-half block to street cars and near the park; no hills to climb; lot 50x125; can be had on unusually easy terms; price $2750; $1250 cash and $20 per month; interest at 6 per cent net. ## CRUISERS TO HAVE TARGET PRACTICE

River Boats Will Dock Here—after at the Pacific Street Wharf

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—The cruiser Albany and perhaps the New Orleans will be sent to Magdalena bay within a few days to remain a month at target practice along with the torpedo boats and destroyers, the supply steamer Arcturion and the parent ship Iris. Later the Albany will be sent to the Far East to take the place of the warships which have been ordered home.

The protected cruiser St. Louis, the flagship of Rear Admiral Phelps for the Peritoa festivities is to be sent to Hawaii to undergo further overhauling. Its crew and officers will be transferred to its sister ship the Milwaukee, which has recently been given an extensive overhauling.

Few officers are on the St. Louis and the Milwaukee will have none too many. The United States warships are short-handed when it comes to commissioned officers. There are plenty of men for the crews but the output of the Annapolis Academy is not sufficient.

The Albatross due to arrive Tuesday from Honolulu will dock for the first time at Filbert street wharf where the Oceanic Steamship Company will hereafter have its dock offices.

Beginning tomorrow morning the river boats which for the last thirty years have taken their departure from the old Market street wharf, near the Ferry Postoffice will be berthed at Pacific street wharf. Bay and river steamers which have heretofore berthed at Mission street wharf will also have their headquarters at Pacific street. This is because tearing down the Mission street wharf is soon to begin.

A wireless message from the Pacific Mail liner Korea reported that vessel was 72 miles off the coast at 8 o'clock Friday night. The Korea, which left San Francisco late, is rapidly making up for lost time. It is expected to arrive at Honolulu practically on its schedule.

NEW ORLEANS TO CRUISE.
The United States cruiser New Orleans, which has been laid up at the Mare Island Navy Yard for a long time, is to be placed in commission on November 15.

CHINESE HOLDUPS
ROB RESTAURANT

Escape

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—Three masked Chinese hold up men each carrying a loaded revolver entered the restaurant of Sim Sing 41 Ross alley, at a tannery of San Francisco, at 10 o'clock Friday morning and held up the proprietor and his customers. The robbers, after relieving them of their valuables and taking the money from the cash register, fled. The robbers, without uttering a syllable, took their loot amounting to $93 and made their escape. The police are working on the case.

remarks they made would make an Oaklander proud. My experience during this week has convinced me that all around this city is one big district and that what helps one side helps the other. Perhaps no two events that have ever occurred have tied us so close together as the parades in San Francisco and the auto races over here.

"Just when all the country is talking of good roads it is most opportune that our splendid boulevard is finished and ready for the auto races. Scores of autoists from San Francisco and San Mateo told me they had no idea that we had such a magnificent highway."

NEW IDEAS FOR SAN FRANCISCO

Deputy Collector of Customs
Will Make Changes in Local Port

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—William B. Hamilton, special deputy collector of customs of the port of San Francisco is here engaged in an exhaustive study of the custom house methods of New York, especially as applied to the application of the new tariff laws and duties. He has collected a large number of ideas and methods which will be put into operation in the San Francisco custom house as soon as he returns in a few weeks.

The innovations will not be especially noticeable to the public, nor is Mr. Hamilton planning any radical changes but rather a more efficient and economical system for the internal handling of the business of the custom house in San Francisco.

"I have spent over a week making a daily study of the mechanism of the custom house here," said Mr. Hamilton, "and have learned a great deal which will be of value at home. Since 80 per cent of the customs business of the United States is done through this port, the methods of handling it have been highly perfected. The operation of the new tariff is more complicated and I have made a special study of the customs department where the duties are figured out. The system here is a splendid one and I hope to be able to apply many of the features to the same department of the customs house in San Francisco."

COLLECTOR LOEB.
Collector Loeb's stringent application of the law to incoming travelers from Europe and the rigid system of examination of baggage which he has imposed at the piers has been the subject of a storm of criticism. Mr. Hamilton was asked if he proposed copying any of Collector Loeb's methods for use in San Francisco.

"I have devoted part of my time to watching the system in vogue at the piers," Mr. Hamilton replied. "But our incoming passenger traffic is so small compared with that of New York that I hardly think it will be necessary to make any change in our present methods in San Francisco. Here it is different. The enormous volume of incoming traffic from Europe especially in the late summer and fall have made it in those months applied by Collector Loeb a necessity. I must say that Mr. Loeb is only doing his duty and enforcing the law."

The law requires that itemized declarations of all goods purchased abroad shall be made by incoming travelers. Of course many wealthy people make extensive purchases and itemized declaration is somewhat irksome but it is required by the law and collector Loeb is only doing his duty. Despite the harsh criticism he has received.

There is no doubt that there has been habit and a wholesale violation of this customs law in the past. People have intentionally failed to itemize all their purchases and the government has lost thousands of dollars of duty thereby. The people who have made a practice of this do not call it smuggling, but in reality it is smuggling. Collector Loeb's vigorous enforcement of the law, however, has greatly increased the customs receipts here and discouraged much of the violation of the law which was common in the past.

Mr. Hamilton spent part of his recent trip in Washington and will make another stop there next week on his way to San Francisco.

Visitors From All Directions
Inquiring for Opportunities

Almost the entire week has been of the nature of a reception to visitors, said George W. Austin, Oakland has been full of strangers and you might think they had all come direct from Missouri. We shall hear from this week for months to come. Judging by the results to Alameda County, I think the Florida committee would have been justified in coming over here to help out in the funds. Between the entertainment features many people from the interior were anxious to see some of the "good things" around Oakland. One man brought me an advertisement that I inserted three weeks ago and seemed greatly disappointed that the property had been sold.

NEW ZEALAND ADOPTS
TAX ON MAIL MATTER

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—The postal administration of New Zealand has notified the postoffice here that in future handbills, circulars, programs, playbills, printed posters, trade catalogues, price lists and fashion plates, printed advertising matter also paper bags and wrapping paper or wrappers of all kinds, printed or lithographed, and printed or lithographed envelopes or labels, are chargeable with customs duty at the rate of 3d per pound on receipt through the post in New Zealand as well as a surtax of 3-5d per pound if not produced in British dominions. Duty is not payable on trade catalogues or price lists of the goods of firms or persons having no established business in New Zealand.

Calendars and showcards of all kinds are liable to a duty of 25 per cent ad valorem and to a surtax of 12½ per cent ad valorem if not produced in British dominions.

SCHOONER LILY RUNS
AGROUND ON RIVER BAR

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—The schooner Lily, bound from San Francisco to the Oregon coast, is reported to have run aground on the north spit of Umpqua river bar last Thursday night. The captain and crew of six men were taken ashore without trouble. It was believed that the flooding tide would sweep the schooner inside the bar within a day or two, without injury. At last accounts the schooner was not leaking.

REMOVING WIRES TO UNDERGROUND CONDUITS

Overhead wires and poles are being removed in the third down-town district established by the first ordinance ordering wires underground. The district is south of Eleventh street, extending to Eighth, and from Washington street to Webster. The work of removing the overhead wires and the poles will be gradually carried out, in accordance with an agreement with the Oakland Gas, Light and Heat Company, the telephone companies, the water company and the telegraph companies. Mayor Mott originated the movement and the city council has passed two ordinances which provide for the removal of wires in the entire down-town section in three years.

Barney Oldfield, in his Benz, made five miles in 3:52 2-5, beating his own record by nearly 19 seconds.

A PIANO FOR $6 DOWN $6 A MONTH

Your Choice of Ten Reliable Makes

There are no strings to this offer. Any one can come in here and pick out a piano, then pay us $6 down and $6 a month. When you can buy a piano from the old reliable firm of Kohler & Chase for $6 down and $6 a month, there is no need for any home to go without a piano.

Piano Renters,
Don't Rent. Buy!

Your rent money is practically wasted. All you'll have to show after years of renting a piano is merely a lot of receipts. On the other hand, pay us $6 down and $6 a month, which is very little more than you will have to pay for rent, you'll get a better piano and you'll own it. There is no easier way ever invented by which you could get a good, reliable, high-grade piano than by this method.

NOTE—In addition to the ten makes of pianos mentioned above, we have several electric pianos now on sale for $6 down and $6 monthly.

Hundreds Have Seized This Opportunity

It seems as if this were just the opportunity, hundreds of people were waiting for. We have sent many number of pianos out already on these $6 payments. The name Kohler & Chase behind this offer is the strongest business card. A fifty-nine year's record of business integrity and square dealing has made the name Kohler & Chase a by-word for honesty in piano selling. Then when people have seen the splendid pianos offered for $6 down and $6 a month and the very low prices at which they are marked they have had one of these pianos sent home at once. Why don't you do the same?

Delmas Scores the First Run by a Daring Steal Home

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 25.—"Slim" Nelson was tortured throughout eight innings of steady bombardment in the Saturday game, when the Angels laced the pen-clip-sheddy p'ther for 16 hits, winning out 9 to 2.

Thorsen, on the other hand, was a steady puzzle to the Oaklanders. He fanned eight of them and allowed but five hits. But for Thorsen's liberality in the matter of giving bases on balls the visitors would have been shut out. He walked both Christian and Hogan in the eighth after which Cameron doubled and Kelley singled, scoring the two base moochers.

With the bases full and two out in the second inning Delmas cut loose with a daring steal of the home plate, scoring the Angels' first run. Ross started the third inning single through the short field. Wang let a

Wheeler sent a tantalizingly bounding drive third base and caught it out, filling the bases. J. Smith roared the ball to center, scoring two, but Wheeler was snapped out at third. Smith went to third on Delmas' out. Hughie Smith walked and stole second. J. Smith scoring on a peg to a coach.

Mayors Meet Other Mayors In St. Louis

—Copyright Photo J. C. Strauss.

Mayor F. H. Kreismann of St. Louis, who is also president of the St. Louis Centennial Association, bears the distinction of being a Mayor over all Mayors. In the great gathering of municipal chiefs held in St. Louis during the last few days as one of the features of the centennial celebration of the founding of that city now being held there, Mr. Kreismann presided over the assemblage.

More than one thousand mayors of American cities were invited to participate in the convocation, but they were not all there, of course.

There were a few hundred of them and if their views on how a city should be conducted were collected and published they would fill several large volumes and then there would be lots left out that ought to be said on the subject.

LABOR DISCUSSES AFFILIATION ROW

Refusal of San Francisco Unions to Recognize National Organizations Considered

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—The refusal of local unions to affiliate with their international organizations and the reasons for such jurisdictional differences was the subject of a protracted discussion at a meeting of the Labor Council Friday night. The question cropped up when a communication was read from the executive council of the American Federation of Labor requesting the local Labor Council to unite with the national union. It was pointed out that such a union would mean peace with its international union by recognizing it. A few weeks ago Electrical Workers' Union No. 632 was expelled by the local council at the request of the federation on similar charges.

EXPLAINS THE CAUSES.
Delegates from other local unions that are having trouble with their parent bodies were all attention when the communication from Secretary Frank Morrison, representing the executive council, was received. Delegate Murray of the Butchers' Union made an explanation of the causes that prompted the local union to secede from the national union. He said that the executive officers of the national union were to blame for permitting conditions that were not fair to the journeymen, but in the interest of the employers. He charged that attempts had been made to disrupt the local union by the officials of the international organization because they could not rule the local union. Murray said that every shop in San Francisco, numbering 512, is in the hands of the journeymen, and that the national union was granting union bounties, including Chinese and Japanese shops. This was more than had been accomplished when the local union was under jurisdiction of the national organization.

NO SYSTEM THIS SIDE OF BAY.
The journeymen were getting from $20, the minimum wage, to $30 a week and working but ten hours a week and eleven on Saturdays. Across the bay, where the international union rules, the journeymen, he said, have no regular conditions, working from fourteen to sixteen hours every day and receiving but $16 a week for this arduous and tiring work. Delegate Frederick Zimmerman also condemned the officials of the national organization for the succession of the local butchers and opposed the unseating of his organization. After a number of other delegates had expressed their views, a motion was adopted instructing the executive committee of the local council to draft an amendment to the laws of the American Federation of Labor, empowering its executive council to investigate such cases with power to discipline unions for withdrawing from their international organizations, if the evidence justified such action.

WOMEN TRADE UNIONISTS.

Mrs. Louise La Rue, who represented the San Francisco women trade unionists at the recent Chicago convention of the National Women's Trade Union League, spoke on the work of that body. She explained the reason for the failure of the convention to adopt an Asiatic exclusion plank, stating that a lack of understanding of the danger of the Oriental invasion was apparent on the part of the Eastern delegates. Some of the Eastern delegates urged the unloading of the Oriental labor as a means of relief, but this was vigorously combated by Mrs. La Rue.

Shrewd business men come here with their wives and buy home furnishings on credit. Why?

Because Jackson's prices are lower than those of exclusive cash stores and by the use of Jackson's dignified credit system (we say dignified because there is no extra charge—when you pay more for goods on credit it's not dignified). The business man can pay for his goods in ten equal payments and use his ready cash in his business investments. Now if the men who are well-to-do find it to their advantage to buy this way how much better it is for the man with a small income or salary who really can't afford a larger cash outlay.

To have a home of your own is one of the greatest inducements to live, and Jackson's dignified credit system—one-tenth down and one-tenth per month—one price, cash or credit—makes a home possible for everyone, no matter how little their income.

JOY-RIDING WIFE MUST GET MONEY

Aged Rancher Ordered to Supply Young Spouse $150 Per Month

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—Henry Stallings, 51, an aged rancher owning considerable valuable property in Yolo county, was today ordered by Judge Van Nostrand to pay his wife, Blanche, $150 a month alimony pending the determination of the divorce suit filed three weeks ago by Stallings, in which he accused his young wife of intemperance and an overfondness for night automobile rides. Stallings testified that he has given his wife $30,000, which she has squandered on all night joy rides. Two months ago the Stallings lived at the St. Francis hotel. Charging that she was deserted two years ago, Marion Judson Dye filed suit for separate maintenance yesterday against Harry D. Dye, manager of a local rubber stamp manufacturing concern, who is said to be worth $10,000. J. H. Marsh, manager of the Mobile Auto Company, was given a divorce from Paula Marsh by Judge Coleman. Marsh testified that his wife was so very fond of country life that he could not persuade her to live at her home in this city. A week after the fire, he testified, Mrs. Marsh went to the country and since that time she has not spent more than two weeks at her home in this city. Rachel from Carl Wigle, intemperance. Harry from Mary Fink, desertion.

GREAT PLANS IN OAKLAND MATURING

The Portola festival has naturally interfered considerably this week with trading in realty in all of the cities on this side of the bay. Still the real estate offices have not been idle by any means. All through the week they have, in fact, been crowded in this city with prospective buyers and many sales of a minor order have been closed. Yesterday was Oakland's day in the week's festivities, and great results are expected to follow the visit of the enormous crowd of spectators which assembled here to witness the automobile road races. Every real estate dealer expects a season of activity, for there were doubtless thousands present in Oakland yesterday who had not visited here in many years before, if at all, and the outing gave them an opportunity to not only get a good day's outing and a splendid sporting exhibition, but it gave them also an opportunity to see Oakland's growth, the extraordinary development of its suburbs and the possibilities which the future carries for profitable investment on this side of the bay where fortune awaits the shrewd and intelligent investor.

But it is not until after the bond and annexation elections are over that the realty men expect things to really begin to hum in their line of business. These occur, respectively, on the 15th and 16th of next month. The results of these elections carry the deepest meaning for Oakland's future and, indeed, for the future of every part of the territory on this side of the bay which is regarded as legitimately constituting a part of the Greater Oakland of the near future. Both elections are expected to result favorably. There is a remarkable and at the same time most gratifying unanimity regarding the popular verdict in favor of the bond issue which will enable the city to begin the systematic improvement of its commercial waterfront on permanent lines, and as to the annexation of new territory whose opposition manifested itself a little over a year ago, it is expected to dwindle down into insignificance.

The annexed territory will, of course, be the first beneficiary of consolidation. It will be the first to reap desired results. Its real estate will be the first to feel the impulse of a new relationship which gives those residing within it the benefit of municipal utilities which they do not now enjoy and cannot afford to acquire by the continuance of their present form of existence. These they will acquire at the minimum of cost to themselves, for they will not be required to carry any of the self-imposed burdens which Oakland is carrying, and they will be thus profiting from the results of the imposition of those burdens have produced without being held responsible for a dime's worth of their cost.

Oakland's interests will profit later. It will come through increased prestige following territorial expansion, just as expansion has given Los Angeles increased prestige at home and abroad. It will facilitate municipal and commercial development on broader and more harmonious lines. And with the issuance of bonds for the improvement of its water front and for the erection of a new city hall commensurate with its standing as a great and growing municipality, assuming metropolitan proportions, its commercial importance and future prosperity will be assured. Property values will be established on a higher and more permanent plane, and new blood and new capital and new industries will be attracted to it from abroad. It will have a foundation of the greatest stability to build upon and work out its legitimate destiny.

The Festival Temporarily Suspends Realty Trading--But Building Is Brisk as Ever

BERKELEY, Oct. 23.—This has not been a good week for the realty brokers in this city, and the Portola festival in San Francisco is chiefly to blame for it. Prospective buyers are in two classes—local and foreign. Those who live in Berkeley have sent many inquiries to the realtors and folk between the two cities and have had no eyes for real estate bargains. Those who hang their hats in other localities, but are possible future residents of this city, have been taking in the sights and the bay. Local business has naturally suffered.

There is no individual under the sun, however, who is more optimistic than the Berkeley real estate dealer, and all of them, as one man, rise up and say: "Next month will see many nice deals consummated."

BUILDING BRISK AS EVER.—Although the attitude across the bay caused a dullness in the way realty transfers, it proved no hindrance to the busy building industry. The work of the last two months bids fair to be equaled by October. Almost all the plans for the new houses and bungalows for residences of the better sort, such as will prove a credit to the pretty colony

Oakland Has Been Well Advertised Among Visiting Strangers to the Festival

"Our general business has been cut into some extent this week by the Portland celebration," said S. H. Masters, manager of the state department of the Layman & Co. Real Estate Company.

"We anticipated this, but feel that the good derived from the general advertising and bringing new people to the bay district will make itself manifest as a hundred fold. I have seen and heard that the same thing was done at Reno, Nevada."

"We found that a number of these visitors, who though on pleasure bent, had made up their mind to combine business with a pleasant time. Attracted by our newspaper advertisements, we have been kept busy showing Rock Ridge Park, our new subdivision. We feel that if we have never made a sale of this property to any of these people from distant points that we have been amply repaid in hearing the exclamations of surprise and wonderment as the picturesque surroundings were unfolded and came into view. We know they will go back to their homes filled with new ideas of the possibilities, beauty and growth, not of Boonville, but of Oakland and Alamogordo County."

"Another condition is now becoming a factor in the upbuilding of Oakland and shows that money is now seeking the individual where heretofore the individual has been looking for money. Indeed, it is still the case that big loans and ample margin in security. We have several parties from San Francisco who are willing to place their money in Oakland improved property from $1000 to $250,000. We also note instances where the San Francisco parties are willing to take property, and where parties need larger loans to make needed improv-

"Our country department has been exceedingly busy. Inquiry for small ranches has not been so brisk, but for larger country holdings have been good. We are in receipt of several communications from reputable parties in the East regarding large tracts of land for colonization purposes. We have several large deals pending in country property the particulars of which will be given

INCREASE IN BUSINESS REQUIRE CHANGE

Newell-Hendricks, Inc., the well-known Berkeley real estate firm, has moved its office from the eighth block to the ground floor of the studio building corner Addison and Shattuck avenues. This move has been in contemplation since Mr. R. C. Newell bought out Irwin Patton Company last January, but no advantageous site was offered until the completion of the new building at University and Shattuck caused several important moves among leading firms.

To Be Erected on Grand Avenue Heights at a Cost of $12,000

One of the most beautiful homes to be erected on Vermont avenue, Grand Avenue Heights, is that for Mrs. F. A. Lacey, the plans for which were furnished to the Artcraft Studio. The style of the exterior will be finished in Oregon myrtle and the floors will be of oak and the heating will be heated by hot water system.

This novel arrangement in the design of this house is the location of automobile garage under the porch. From the garage there is a door opening into the house, thus making it possible to enter a house the auto in stormy weather without being obliged to get out of the car. The building contains every known convenience, together with several entirely new conveniences particularly for women. The estimated cost of the house, and will cost approximately $12,000.

It is not at all unlikely that, while he undertakes this trip to obtain information, he also undertakes it to spread information of his own. He has already made it clear that he has in mind many recommendations for the public good as he views it. It will be a disappointment if he fails to elucidate them.—New Haven Journal-Courier.

Business District Will Be Thoroughly Protected by it Against Fire

The laying of the new salt water main in the business district is fast drawing toward completion. It has been a huge job, but when finished and ready for operation, it will be a great acquisition to the fire department and an invaluable aid for the protection of property against the ravages of fire. The system covers practically the whole retail district and the major part of the wholesale district, and also a large number of the manufacturing industries. The possibilities of damage by fire in the territory covered by it will be reduced to a minimum. The enormous pressure which the powerful pumps and engines installed at the pumping station of Lake Merritt, can exert on the mains will enable the department to throw several streams from any of the hydrants to a greater height than any of the skyscrapers in the city. About a half dozen streams, for example, can be thrown directly over the top of the Union Savings Bank Building simultaneously. As soon as the plant is ready for operation a public exhibition of its capacity will be given.

Newell-Hendricks, Inc., the well-known Berkeley real estate firm, have moved their offices from the Wright block to the ground floor of the studio building at the corner Addison and Shattuck avenues. This move has been in contemplation since Mr. R. C. Newell bought out Irwin Patton Company last January, but no advantageous site was available until the completion of the new building at University and Shattuck caused several important moves among leading firms of

Organizations Created Expressly for Protection of Investors in Real Estate

The following communication set forth so lucidly the purposes for which the Realty Estate Association organized in the leading cities and the Realty Federation which has been formed by them in California that THE TRIBUNE feels warranted in publishing it in full and recommending it to every reader who contemplates the sale of realty or investment therein:

PERILS OF INVESTORS.
EDITOR TR BUNE: Safety in the first consideration in an investment. There are many apparently small details in connection with the purchase of real estate that many readers of this magazine would consider unsafe, and the average investor is absolutely ignorant of them. Very few investors would feel themselves qualified to examine the title, piece by piece, of a large number of parcels, nor realize even that a perfect title is an essential. A very dangerous form of investment is the "purchase on the installment plan as a rule of property which does not involve a contract, but is sold on contract, which contract is dependent altogether upon another contract between the real owner and the vendor. The average purchaser is not aware of the difference between a contract and a deed. Those who do know would doubtless require expert advice as to the title. But there are some other matters which are of importance and on which the title is not involved, and on which the title agent which they know nothing about.

SPHERE OF REALTY AGENTS

Hence the existence and importance of the real estate agent. It comparatively easy to find a piece of land for sale, and, if one makes the business of it, to find the owner and get the latter to agree to sell at a certain price, and to execute the deed, is a higher degree of ability. The majority of the people that any one could be a real estate agent. And in a legal sense, unfortunately, is present that is true. But the business of dealing in real estate, and the business of buying and selling, and the investor or seller either will make certain that the real estate agent through whom he transacts business is one who knows what he is about, and is trustworthy. For it is education, and the high of the experience and knowledge, and comparative values, keen observation, and trained judgment. Above all, the real estate agent should be a man of honor. In the highest sense of the word. For he is entrusted with the future of families; upon him falls the duty of guarding the interests of the widow and the orphan, the ignorant and the trusting. It is comparatively easy for the agent to be a selfish, unscrupulous, and untruthful man; but it is not so easy to be a man of honor. For the unscrupulous man, and, in very many cases, even people of ability at knowledge in other lines of work.

REAL ESTATE DEALING SUFFERS

In the abundance of legal requirements or exactions as to the fitness of the man to be a real estate agent, the real estate men, in common with the public, have suffered from the misbehavior of a few in the business and from the stupidity and ignorance of some who have engaged in the business without qualification and equipment.

As a consequence the business itself acquired a bad name. The reflecting an indiscriminate, especially those who had been victimized, clasped the real estate men in their arms and sobbed.

Goaded by the contempt directed toward the business, suffering financially by the distrust engendered by the scandal, the industry's top better agents in California followed the example of their fellows in the East and went in the last six or eight years and withdrew completely from the market, nearly all cases rigidly excluding from membership in such organizations agents or owners of bad reputes. Since the formation of the California Real Estate Board in 1901, of Los Angeles Real Estate Board in 1903 and of similar bodies in other cities a little later, the standard of the industry has been gradually raised. And in the organizations themselves it is recognized that honesty and fair dealing is the best financial policy as well as the best ethical one.

REALTY FEDERATION.

The seven leading local real estate boards are united in a State Realty Federation. In 1905, and this includes individual membership in nearly every town in the State. Rigid scrutiny of applicants for membership, rules requiring submission to an arbitration and investigation committee of difference complaints against agents with severe penalties provided for offenses.

In Grand Avenue Heights

Beautiful view of Golden Gate, Lake Merritt and Piedmont

—One of the finest homes in Oakland.

Price $7000—on Terms

—One of the most beautiful homes in Oakland; a piece of property that will be worth ten thousand dollars within two years.

—The lot is one of the finest in Grand Avenue Heights and the view is superb.

—The house is magnificently built. It occupies a S. W. corner and is exceedingly artistic in every particular and at the same time delightfully homelike and wonderfully convenient.

—There are four beautiful bedrooms, an immense sleeping porch, and a fine, big enameled bathroom and toilet upstairs. The closets are exceedingly large and are lit and ventilated by windows.

—Downstairs there is a fine, big reception hall, a grand living room with a big log-burning fireplace that will take the largest kind of logs, an exceedingly pretty dining-room, and a good, sensible kitchen that will delight the ladies.

—Off the kitchen is the servant's room, and in the basement, which is all cemented, are the wash trays and laundry apparatus and pipes for a furnace.

—In the reception hall, living-room and dining-room the floors are hard wood. All the other floors, except the hard wood stairs, are of beautifully polished white pine, almost as fine as hard wood.

—French doors open on to the porch and from the reception hall to the dining-room, the glass running from top to foot.

—There is a fine butler's pantry, one of the best cooling closets that ever went into a house, a big store room for utensils off the kitchen, and a toilet on the back porch.

—Off the living-room, in addition to the main porch, there is a glorious little sun porch arranged as a place to serve afternoon tea or to sit and sew or read.

—In all, this is an ideal house.

—Ideal in location, neighborhood, arrangement and price. It is a better place than twice the amount will usually buy. Twenty thousand dollars couldn't buy a lot with any prettier view, and twenty thousand dollars couldn't build a more comfortable or a more sensible house. —You'll like it.

—Call us up today—Oakland 147 —and we will arrange to come out in the auto and get you and then take you on out to see it. It won't take over an hour, and it may be the very place you've been trying to find.

—It will take from $2000 to $3000 cash to secure it. Balance as convenient.

Angell Fears He Can't Keep Himself Busy

DR. JAMES B. ANGELL.

Dr. James B. Angell, known as the Grand Old Man of Michigan, has retired from the presidency of the State University after thirty-eight years of holding that position. He was born January 7, 1829, in Scituate, R. I. His mother was noted for her beauty and she happily lived to see her son reach position as one of the foremost educators of the day. He entered Brown university in 1845 with the intention of becoming a minister, but was compelled to abandon his design by throat trouble which affected his vocal chords. He graduated in 1849 and spent several years in the South and Europe.

Upon his return he became a professor of modern languages at his alma mater and seven years later was made editor of the Providence Journal. Six years later he became president of the University of Vermont.

In 1871 he removed to Ann Arbor and took up his life work as president of the University of Michigan.

Dr. Angell was appointed Minister to China and later was United States Minister to Turkey.

Although an octogenarian Dr. Angell is hale and hearty. In reply to a question as to what he would do, now that he had retired from the Ann Arbor University, he said:

"I wish you could tell me that I am just beginning today to understand that that's a question which is likely to cause me serious trouble. I realize now that I shall have to begin immediately to plan what to do with my time. I have never before had any time to waste."

"Today, although I may be officially dead, I think I shall begin to manage to live, especially after I have had time to collect myself and look around to see all that there is for a man of leisure to enjoy. I am going to find out what life means when there is no weight of responsibility on a man's shoulders."

Dr. Angell will not find all his time hanging heavy on his hands, even if he doesn't succeed in getting used to "leisure," as he terms his newly found condition. Besides being president emeritus his connection with the university will continue as an active instructor. He will meet classes in international law, a subject with which perhaps no man in the United States is more thoroughly conversant than James B. Angell.

REPUDIATES HIS OLD TESTIMONY

San Jose Real Estate Man Admits Mistake in Prosecuting French

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—Clarence H. Geldert, a San Jose real estate man, who was the complaining witness against Charles W. French, tried in 1905 for obtaining $500 from Geldert under false pretenses, the jury disagreeing with a vote of nine for conviction, declared before Superior Judge Dooling today that he did not believe French guilty, although at the previous trial he had testified without qualification that French made false representations to him.

"I have since talked the matter over with French," said Geldert yesterday, "and I am certain that there was no logical transaction. I could not testify as I did in the former trial, as I believe now that I was mistaken."

Assistant District Attorney John O'Garra then moved to dismiss the case and Judge Dooling granted the motion.

FORGER CONVICTED IN PRESENCE OF FAMILY

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—Walter Baker, aged 22, was convicted of forgery this morning before Judge Dooling. In the Superior Court, the jury returning a verdict of guilty, with the recommendation that Baker be dealt with leniently. Baker's wife and child were in court when the verdict was returned.

Two months ago Baker forged a check for $15, signing the name "Sierra Lumber Company" to the instrument. He then passed it on William Hoffman. Baker testified that the check was given to him by a stranger and that he did not know it was forged. Witnesses testified that Baker had been involved in similar transactions before.

PHELAN LOSES OVERCOAT AT ATHLETIC CONTEST
SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—James D. He had left the automobile unoccupied for a few minutes while he went to speak to friends. When he returned to the machine the overcoat was gone.

NEED OF MORE FUNDS FOR SONOMA MISSIONS

SANTA ROSA, Oct. 23.—Through the agencies of the members of the Sonoma Valley Woman's Club over $600 has been raised for carrying out necessary improvements on the old Mission at Sonoma. The work will be commenced the coming week, so as to have the historic landmark in condition to withstand the storms of winter. But for the aid of the club, the old building would have tumbled down.

From people of Fort Ross comes the Macedonian's cry:

"Come over and help us save the old Fort Ross fort and Greek church, the only landmark of its kind in the State, which was purchased some years ago through the efforts of the Landmarks League and presented to the State."

The old fort and chapel is being shamefully allowed to crumble away.
